Invoke T-H Act in Dock Strike

OFF THE BEATEN CUFF —With more than one side to every story, it's time we analyze the traffic safety problem in Dixon regarding bicycle riders.

Fresh in our minds is the death Saturday of a 12-year-old Dixon boy in a car-bike collision at the Brinton Avenue-Bradshaw street intersection.

Citizens in that area immediately drafted a petition with the view to preventing repetition of such tragedy by requesting the city council to install a 4-way stop at the intersection.

Undoubtedly, the petitioners are sincere in their desire to slow traffic on the heavily used thoroughfare. But, the problem seems more basic than this quick solution indicates.

The youth who died Saturday apparently ran a stopsign at the intersection, according to witnesses. Why? It's too late for more than conjecture.

A coroner's jury exonerated the car operator involved, marking the mishap, an "unavoidable accident." No matter, the driver probably never will be the same.

In the wake of death, Dixon police are conducting a vigorous campaign against lawless motoring on city streets, aimed primarily at speeders and reckless drivers.

The purpose of the crack-down is to protect lives, particularly those of our younger generation. Adults must accept responsibilities as motorists.

But, youthful cyclists also must carry their share of the traffic safety burden... in their own interest as well as that of the public.

Every parent allowing a child to ride a bike should be certain the child knows and obeys rules-of-the-road regarding safe-cycling.

Apparently that's not the case, as motorists will testify, in view of the seemingly irresponsible way countless youngsters cycle in Dixon, or anywhere else.

If parents, out of common sense, will not enforce safe and sane cycling by offspring, then it's up to civic authorities.

A number of answers are available, from the registration of bicycles with city police, to having all bikes licensed. Why?

The purpose is to place responsibility in the minds of youthful cyclists, enjoying the privilege of using public thoroughfares, much in the same manner responsibility is shouldered by the average motorist.

Licensing or registering bicycles should be to enforce safe riding habits, using legal pressure when common sense efforts in the home are lacking or fail.

Riders who indiscriminately violate the law should have the privilege of cycling suspended until such time authorities feel the rider has sense enough to cycle properly.

In some Illinois communities, bikes are registered. But, before this is done, the bike must pass a safety inspection and the rider must demonstrate his ability to handle the bicycle.

Violations of safe-riding rules could be penalized by (1) revoking a license or (2) by cancelling a registration, both for specified periods of time, prohibiting cycling during these periods.

Upon enactment of a city ordinance, anyone discovered riding without either registration or license, whatever the system, should be fined.

The value of the system not only imbeds responsibility in young minds, but also creates a foundation for future safety practices when a rider is old enough to drive a car.

Administration of the program could be handled either by city police or volunteer civic groups with delegated authority to supervise inspections and examinations. G.W.H.

Redebaugh Takes Oath

FORMER LEE COUNTY SHERIFF CHARLES REDEBAUGH (right) takes the oath of office from R. G. Knight, Rockford, post office inspector, as new Dixon postmaster. Redebaugh assumes his new post today, replacing Rae A. Arnold (center) who resigned to devote his time to his insurance agency in Dixon. Redebaugh's resignation as sheriff went into effect midnight Wednesday with John Stouffer, former chief deputy, appointed sheriff to complete Redebaugh's unexpired term.

Unemployment Rate Easing Here Dixon Area Labor Market 'More Stable,' Is Claim

ROCK FALLS—(Special)—The downward trend in manufacturing in the Sterling-Dixon area is easing, according to A. F. Heindel, manager of the Illinois State Employment Service office here.

Heindel said today he believes the labor market is becoming more stable after a decline in employment during the summer.

He estimated unemployment in the area is 800 including more than 300 women.

Heindel reported several companies have contacted him recently about the availability of a labor supply if they should decide to set up plants in the area. A New York attorney who called on Heindel said he represented a company interested in a site for a plant which would take 1,000 workers one year to build, and would employ 4,000 workers.

The employment manager said he has been able to report favorably to all such inquiries.

The employment service's September report on labor market trends in the Sterling-Dixon area said while manufacturing employment declined, construction and other non-manufacturing activities remained at high levels. The area now has a labor surplus with competition among job seekers.

The report said all skilled mechanics in the construction industry are employed, and will be until cold weather curtails work. Seasonal demand for workers to do railroad repair work, corn-picking and other agricultural jobs remains high.

Show Declines In the 60-day period ending Aug. 15 the electrical machinery, non-electrical machinery and primary metals industries showed declines in employment. Fabricated metal products were stable, and food processing, millwork and cement made slight employment gains.

Applications in the Rock Falls employment office showed surplus of workers in almost all occupational groups except clerical and stenographic. About 55 per cent of the applicants are under 35 years of age and mostly in the semi-skilled or unskilled groups.

The service said the outlook for the next 60 to 90 days is, "manufacturing employment is expected to stabilize with the exception of the non-electrical machinery industry which may have a temporary decline due to inventory shut-down. Construction workers will swell the unemployed pool when the weather closes construction projects."

They are so far out of line they are ridiculous," Loomis remarked in Chicago.

The four independent unions represent nearly a third of a million railroaders. Their contracts contain a clause preventing management or the unions from proposing any changes in wages or working conditions until today. New proposals became possible at 12:01 a.m. today.

President May Give America Official Account of H-Bomb

May Reveal How Island Disappeared

AEC Chairman Says Russians May Have Started Bomb First

WASHINGTON — (P) — Americans — and Russians — may get from President Eisenhower the first official account of what happened when the United States shattered a Pacific island with a hydrogen explosion.

That possibility is suggested by Eisenhower's statement Wednesday that he is sorting out in his mind what he should say in a proposed frank public discussion of world tension and growing destructiveness of armament.

To present as part of that broad discussion a picture of the disaster that would come to all nations in an H-bomb war, the President may feel impelled to tell what the newest and most dreadful weapon in the arsenal can do — if used by either the United States or Russia.

Island Disappears Personal letters written by men who witnessed an unprecedented explosion at Eniwetok last fall told of a whole island of the Pacific atoll disappearing in the blast.

Until Wednesday night the Atomic Energy Commission had not even conceded that an actual hydrogen blast occurred at Eniwetok. "It had spoken guardedly of experiments 'contributing to thermonuclear' research."

But in an address Wednesday night at New York, AEC Chairman Lewis L. Strauss referred to the test of a "thermonuclear device." In the language of atomic experts a "device" can produce all the power and other features of an actual weapon. The only difference is that it is encumbered and festooned with recording instruments and is not necessarily fitted into the ballistics — perfect container of a bomb or projectile.

Ominous News Russia has said — and the United States has confirmed — that the Soviets succeed in producing a hydrogen explosion. To this Strauss added the ominous word that he believes the Soviet Union started development of the hydrogen bomb some time before the United States. He blamed espionage and "treason" for the ability of the Russians to produce a hydrogen blast within nine months after the United States.

Involved also in Eisenhower's problem of what to say about Russia and the hydrogen bomb are the questions of air power, continental defense and the impact on the nation's military budget.

If even one Soviet plane with one hydrogen bomb got through the air defense system, a big American city could be vaporized. And, say United Air Force officials, the money required to build a defense system even approaching 100 per cent effectiveness would bankrupt any nation — and even then wouldn't provide absolute defense.

Still another perplexity for the President is civilian defense. The "Weapons Effect Handbook" used by all civilian defense agencies now is utterly outmoded by advent of the H-bomb.

Three other big rail unions — the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers, the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen and the Order of Railway Conductors.

Before any of the four unions could strike, a vote of the membership would be necessary.

SURVIVES RARE OPERATION — Doctors in Chicago said a rare operation, one they called the first of its kind, saved the life of Colleen Gale, shown sleeping peacefully in the arms of her mother, Mrs. Charles Johnson, at American hospital, in Chicago. Colleen was born Sept. 22. Doctors found that her pancreas was wrapped tightly around the duodenum which leads from the stomach into the intestines. Dr. Paul M. Egel, hospital surgeon, said examination showed the baby would die unless corrective surgery. He operated on the child when she was two days old. Dr. Max Thorek, head of the hospital, said Colleen's operation was the first successful one of its kind. (AP Wirephoto)

Dixon Lumber Project Begins Walnut Trees on Park Board's Island Felled

A minor logging operation, within sight of the Dixon downtown business district, was continuing today.

Huge walnut trees were being felled on the large island upstream from the Public Service Co. hydroelectric plant on the Rock river by the Hells Lumber Co., Oregon. The lumber is designated for an Indiana firm.

Park board officials, who control the island by reason of a lease arrangement with the Public Service Co., explained today that it was a "planned" operation designed to provide additional revenue for the park district.

Alfred Nichols, park board member, said that the operation would yield about $4,000 this year with the prospect of more to come.

Refuse to Talk After refused to talk about the project, Nichols promptly downed rumors that the island would be "denuded" of trees.

"It's a planned program," Nichols said. "The project has been gone over thoroughly with the park board's forestry consultant and we are removing approximately 120 of the 600 or 700 walnut trees now on the island."

Nichols said that the trees selected for felling consisted of those that have reached maturity and others that have been struck by lightning.

"The public won't be able to detect the difference," Nichols said. His explanation came on the heels of several inquiries and complaints directed to the Evening Telegraph.

He said that the park board also took the action to prevent overcrowding of the smaller trees. By allowing the other walnut trees to grow, Nichols said that the park board could anticipate more income from the sale of the timber.

Planned Future He emphasized, however, that future operations would be "planned" and that nowise would the valuable trees be removed without consideration for the beauty of the area.

Most of the trees selected for removal this year average 20 inches or more in diameter. Some of them reached the height of 80 feet, Nichols said.

Five Anti-Commies Hurt in Action in Prisoner Hospital

PANMUNJOM (P) — One anti-Communist North Korean war prisoner was killed and five were wounded today when Indian guards opened fire during a screaming, rock-throwing demonstration in a compound and hospital, the Indian command announced tonight.

The U.N. command, which announced the incident first, said six prisoners were wounded.

An Indian spokesman said several Indian officers and enlisted men were injured by rocks.

Hurl Stones The Indian command said about 500 North Koreans in custody of the neutral nations repatriation commission hurled stones and tried to scale a barbed wire fence while demonstrating against a visit by Polish and Czech commission members.

"When the situation grew so serious that the local commander thought the lives of the Indian troops and NNRC members were threatened, he ordered his guards to fire single shots," said Brig. Gen. V. M. Kaul.

"They fired five or six single shots to begin with. A total of 12 rounds were fired, all single shots."

Disturbances Kaul said patients in the hospital "created disturbances" as five doctors from the commission entered for an inspection tour.

"Then some POWs in the nearby compound began to shout, throw stones and scale the barbed wire..." Kaul said.

Second in Wreck An Allied spokesman said earlier the demonstration began in the hospital.

The demonstration was the second by anti-Communist prisoners within a week. Chinese POWs seized an Indian major and held him hostage 1½ hours last Friday to protest the return of a Chinese captive to the Communists.

The repatriation commission, meanwhile, put the finishing touches on an answer to a U.N. command protest that it distributed an allegedly Communist-inspired letter to anti-Red POWs Saturday.

An Indian spokesman said the first draft of the letter — rejected by the commission — was somehow distributed to the POWs instead of a second approved version.

The U.N. command said the letter was plainly pro-Communist and clearly emphasized that balking prisoners should return home rather than make a "free choice."

No Violence There were no reports of violence despite inter-union rivalry for control of the waterfront.

The strike over a wage contract was called by the International Longshoremen's Assn., recently ousted by the American Federation of Labor for failure to rid itself of racketeering elements. Efforts of the AFL to bring the discredited ILA members into a new union inspired fears of possible violence.

Wednesday night on the vast New York waterfront, longshoremen worked at fever pitch to get several dozen ships loaded and out of the world's largest port before the strike deadline of midnight.

Cargo for American armed forces abroad will not be affected.

Stoppage Paralyzes Shipping

Ike Asks Court Order Stopping Strike That Imperils the Nation

NEW YORK (P) — A multi-million dollar longshoremen's strike today paralyzed East coast ports, and within hours President Eisenhower invoked Taft-Hartley law cooling off provisions in an effort to halt it.

Mechanics of invoking the law made it unlikely it could take effect before next week.

Railroad officials in a move to prevent goods from piling up here, ordered an embargo on railroad freight destined for the New York waterfront for shipment.

Imperils Welfare Eisenhower declared the strike imperils the nation's welfare and appointed a three-man board of inquiry headed by David L. Cole, former director of the Federal Conciliation and Mediation Service.

Eisenhower, in an executive order, directed the board to report to him by midnight Oct. 5.

These are preliminary steps to seeking from the courts an order to stop the strike.

Court Injunction Once the President receives the board's report, he can direct the Justice Department to ask a court injunction to halt the strike for 80 days while attempts are made to reach an agreement.

The President's executive order said that the strike, which began early today, "will imperil the national health and safety" if permitted to continue.

On the strike scene, a strike leader said, "The ports are tied up completely from Portland, Maine, to Hampton Roads, Va."

"Nothing is loading."

Two Dock Two huge liners managed to dock in New York despite the work stoppage that began at midnight.

The 51,840-ton French liner Liberte, 834 feet long, berthed with the guidance of one of her motor lieutenants. The 683-foot American liner Constitution, a 28,500 tonner, was aided by two motor launches in docking.

Tugboat crews as well as longshoremen were idle.

Ships Flee Many ships fled port before the strike deadline.

Sixty-eight vessels, among them the liners United States and Queen Elizabeth, churned out of New York harbor Wednesday late in the morning. About 25 or 30 ships ordinarily sail from here in one day.

Pickets patrolled outside major piers at the 8 a.m. "shape-up," or going to work hour, but some disbanded later when it became apparent the longshoremen did not intend to work.

At the usually bustling Hudson River piers, only small picketing teams gave outward evidence that the strike was on.

Parcel Post, Phone Rates Given Boost

WASHINGTON — (U) — Rates went up today for making long distance telephone calls across state lines and for mailing packages by parcel post. The increases will cost Americans an estimated 218 million dollars a year.

An average 8 per cent advance in interstate long distance phone tolls became effective with the sanction late Wednesday of the Federal Communications Commission. The hikes, effective throughout the Bell system, will add about 65 million dollars a year to charges for the service.

Parcel post rates went up an average of 35 per cent, or an estimated 153 million annually. The advance was authorized by the Interstate Commerce Commission last June.

American Ingenuity Solves Difficult Iron Ore Problem

While World War II was still on, a prominent steel executive said: "This is the last war that will be fought off the Mesabi." He meant that stocks of high grade iron ore on the Mesabi Range in Minnesota, the country's main supply source, were beginning to run low.

Soon after the war, the steel industry acknowledged that this dark forecast was accurate. American companies explored the globe for new deposits. Important discoveries led to development of foreign resources in Labrador, Liberia and Venezuela.

But the total potential in these finds could satisfy only a fair proportion of the nation's peacetime needs, let alone its wartime demand. Furthermore, their development meant placing big new mills at water's edge along the eastern seaboard, plus heavy outlay in ocean-going vessels, dock equipment and the like.

Worst of all, reliance on these sources meant exposing our iron-ore lifeline to the marauding of enemy submarines in wartime. The risk was great.

Consequently, steel and ore firms gave major attention to the only evident alternative—development of American sources of low-grade iron. Heretofore these had been largely ignored, for the simple reason that high-grade ores were plentiful and the cost of getting out the low-grade stuff was virtually prohibitive.

But in upper Minnesota and Michigan this material, contained in stubborn rock called taconite, lay beneath the ground in great abundance. In fact, these billions of tons of iron-bearing rock represented the "mother lode" from which the softer, higher-grade ores of present use had been evolved.

If only a practical and economical way could be found to extract this rock and prepare it for the mill, then the industry would be assured of raw material for a long time to come, and the nation's security would be much enhanced.

The first experiments were not too promising. Just drilling this tough rock was a frustrating task. It was found that even trucks and railroad cars would not last long unless specially protected against it.

Gradually, however, progress began to show. A complicated series of processes was developed. A new machine called a "jet piercer" bored through the rock effectively. Thereafter the rock was blasted and hauled away to new plants where it could be crushed and ground to the fineness of flour, the ore separated magnetically from the useless rock, and the iron powder then lumped into pellets for shipment to mills.

According to the magazine Steelways, the industry's pace in this field has quickened measurably since the first pilot plant, with a capacity of 200,000 tons of pellets a year, started operating in mid-1948. Today one firm is either operating or building plants whose capacity may reach 10 million tons annually. The original experimenting company plans another plant to produce 10.5 million tons. Others are getting under way with small goals.

Together, these taconite plants, existing or planned, could turn out perhaps a fifth of the country's present yearly needs in iron ore. This is indeed progress. And it is a tribute, once more, to American resourcefulness and ingenuity in the face of difficult industrial problems.

The MATURE PARENT

Here's Why a Child Needs Loyalty to Principles First

By MURIEL LAWRENCE

Some weeks ago, this column discussed the problem of a child's "divided loyalty" to his divorced parents. A reader is incensed by my advice that the child be released from the obligation of loyalty to them.

She thinks it's outrageous that I urged he be trained in loyalty to principles, instead of people. "Is this child not to honor his parents?" she asks.

"We do not honor on order. We do not love by command. Both honor and love have to be earned. Nor do I think that we can be genuinely loyal to anyone unless we are first loyal to principles."

If Billy, for example, has been taught to give his first loyalty to truthfulness, he inevitably becomes loyal to us. When we're flurried by the laundryman's knock at the door, we say to Billy, "Tell him I'm not in, dear."

Trained in first loyalty to truthfulness, Billy stares at us and asks, "Why do you lie, mother?" We stare back at the small son who is forcing us to consider our behavior. We realize the weakness of our position.

If we are a thoughtful person, we realize that our impulse to lie was the impulse to evade an admission of carelessness to the laundryman. We go out to him and say, "I forgot to get a new checkbook at the bank yesterday, so I cannot pay you today."

That is good for our soul as well as for Billy's. But if Billy believes he must be more loyal to Mother than to truthfulness, he dares not ask us why we lie. In confusion, he has to wonder about it by himself. Some of his trust in truthfulness is lost. One day he breaks our Lingo's ash tray.

As he has seen us evade a possible loss of the laundryman's approval by telling a lie, he evades a possible loss of our approval by telling one himself. He denies that he broke the ash tray.

And as we know he did, just as he knew we were in when we said we were out, we begin to lose trust in Billy as he has begun to lose it in us.

In a confused situation like parents' divorce, a child's training in first loyalty to a principle, like truthfulness, is an asset to everyone. It enables him to express his true thoughts and feelings about what has occurred without fear of being misunderstood or reproved.

It gives us the insight we need into the kinds of struggles going on in him, so that in helping him with them, we come closer to him than we could if a sense of personal loyalty kept him silent.

Without first loyalty to principles, human relationships can turn

Questions and Answers

Q—Do the people of Greenland vote?

A—Yes, as of this year.

Q—At what age does an oak tree bear acorns?

A—Usually not until 20.

Q—Why was the name centaur given to a mythical creature believed to be half man and half horse?

A—An explanation for the centaur myth may be that the early Greeks, who knew nothing of horse-back riding, saw a rider come out of Thessaly and though the man was part of the horse.

Q—Does the giraffe have an unusual number of neckbones?

A—No, it has the usual seven.

Q—What was the purchase price per acre for the Louisiana Territory?

A—Two and one-half cents.

Q—When were camels imported into this country as a transportation experiment?

A—In 1858.

Q—In what country is the per capita meat consumption highest?

A—Argentina. Ranking next are New Zealand and Australia.

Q—Who was the first child born in the White House?

A—James Madison Randolph, grandson of President Jefferson.

Q—Why is a pleasure boat called a yacht?

A—Its name comes from a pleasure craft which was given to King Charles II of England by the Dutch. This Dutch vessel was known in the lowlands as a yot, yacht, pronounced "yacht."

Q—How many bones are there in a human hand?

A—There are 27 bones.

Robert A. Peary, unfurled five flags on his first trip to the North Pole; that of Delta Kappa Epsilon, his college fraternity; that of the Navy League; a "World's Ensign of Liberty and Peace"; a U. S. flag; and what he described as a "Red Cross flag," a white maltese cross on a red background.

Jimmy Pettillo, a dictator with no authority from any political division of our nation, nor even from his own subject subjects, has announced that, in collusion with a British union leader, he has decided to continue to exclude British musicians from the United States. The British union leader will exclude Americans from Britain. This deal will prevent British players from performing for hire in this country and that will be a flagrant usurpation of the power of Congress set forth in the first article of our Constitution which says: "Congress shall have power to regulate commerce with foreign nations."

The British union leader is Arthur Radcliff, general secretary of the appropriate union over there, which is equally destitute of authority from the British parliament to set up barriers to prevent foreigners from working in the United Kingdom.

The British laws are not the same as ours but their purport is about the same. Nevertheless, in a comparable case a few years ago, coal miners in Wales tried to exclude workers from Italy whose enthusiasm for double shifts so that they could earn money to feed their families back home was described in amazement by an English journalist who saw them toiling while the British union miners loafed.

American workers paid income taxes to ex-tract this rock and prepare it for the mill, then the industry would be assured of raw material for a long time to come, and the nation's security would be much enhanced.

In Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — Exclusively Yours: Danny Thomas' Wailing Syran was part of his night-club act, but it wasn't an act when he wailed about the rigors of live television and bowed off the home screens almost two years ago.

Now he returns to video Sept. 29 (ABC-TV) with an on-film show as the head of a new TV family and it's a beaming instead of a wailing Thomas.

Filmed like "I Love Lucy," Danny's new show, "Make Room for Daddy," makes room for ALL of Danny Thomas. As Director Sheldon Leonard explains it:

"We're using all of Danny's qualities—his warmth and sentimentality—as well as his talents."

Luke Lucy, Danny will have an audience behind the cameras and even a veteran movie-maker like Lou Edelman, who is producing the show after 21 years at Warner Bros., admits that a comedian like Thomas needs an audience—"You lose 70 per cent of Danny's vitality, personality and drive without an audience."

About the show Lou predicts: "It's been a long time since Hollywood has gone in for family films like the Andy Hardy and Jones Family series. Danny is a star but he's also a family man. Ours is a family show."

Jean Hagen plays Danny's wife in the series, with teen-aged Sherry Jackson as his daughter, six-year-old Rusty Hamer as his son and night-club's Ben Leasy as his pal.

About Rusty, Director Leonard says: "He's a howl. I keep one camera on him all the time just to catch what he throws away."

About Ben, he predicts: "The third show will skyrocket him to TV fame."

"DUDES ARE AWFUL." Inside on Designer Ross Mabry's exit as Judy's glad-rags whipper-upper for "A Star is Born" is that Judy insisted on wearing her own clothes—just as she did in her last MGM film, "Summer Stock"—for test footage.

Studio executives, not realizing that Judy and NOT Mabry designed the clothes, commented aloud that the duds were pretty awful. Then Judy hit the ceiling and the fat was in the fire.

Warren's Appointment to High Court Is Applauded

WASHINGTON (AP)—Substantial senate approval was forecast today for President Eisenhower's appointment of Gov. Earl Warren as chief justice of the United States.

When the court opens its fall term here Monday, the big, smiling California Republican will don the chief justice's robes.

NEW CHIEF JUSTICE—Gov. Earl Warren of California was named chief justice of the United States by President Eisenhower. The three-time governor said he was resigning on Sunday and would be in Washington the following day to take the oath when the Supreme Court convenes. (AP Wirephoto)

Barring an unforeseen special session of congress, the senate will not act at least until January, when the regular session begins.

All Praise Selection
Democrats joined with Republicans in praising the selection. Adlai E. Stevenson, the Democrats' unsuccessful presidential nominee in 1952, said it was "an excellent appointment."

Sen. Kilgore (D-WVa.), a member of the judiciary subcommittee, said he regards the California governor as "a fine man, very capable and very broadminded."

Associate Justice Harold Burton, the only Republican now in the court, said Warren "will make an admirable chief justice."

Eisenhower told a White House news conference Wednesday:

"I certainly wanted a man whose reputation for integrity, honesty, middle-of-the-road philosophy, experience in government, experience in the law, were all such as to convince the United States that here was a man who had no ends to serve except the United States

"Great Chief Justice"

"To my mind he is a man who will make a great chief justice, and so I selected him."

In Sacramento, Calif., the 62-year-old nominee announced he was accepting the appointment, would resign as governor as of midnight Sunday and be on hand here Monday to take the oath of office.

Although Eisenhower tabbed him a middle-of-the-roader, Warren generally is regarded as a "progressive" Republican whose proposals often went far beyond the bounds of national party platforms.

For instance, he was criticized by some Republicans for attempts to set up in California a compulsory health insurance system.

Court observers doubted that Warren's appointment would change the balance on that body—now considered largely conservative.

LEAVES CONVENT FOR REST—Blonde June Haver, who dropped a bright film career last February to enter a Sisters of Charity convent, embraces her mother, Mrs. Andrew Ottestad (right) on arriving home in Los Angeles for "a rest." She told newsmen that she hopes to return to the Xavier, Kan., order, but that her decision depends upon her health. June's mother told reporters that the former actress suffers from severe headaches. (AP Wirephoto)

Methodist Women Plan Study Class

The Woman's Society of Christian Service of the Methodist church will again sponsor a study class this fall. The book, "That the World May Know," will be studied with Mrs. Sidney Bloomquist conducting the course.

The book by Charles W. Ransom has for its theme, the task of the church around the world. It gives the history of missions and how the church has grown from one decade to another. Thrilling stories and experiences of missionaries have been vividly portrayed by the author.

The classes will be held in the church beginning Wednesday morning, Oct. 7. The first session will begin at 8:45 o'clock with a coffee-cup hour. A nursery will be provided for the children of mothers who wish to attend the classes.

All women interested are invited to enjoy these fellowship and study periods.

Reveal Poles Rejoiced When Stalin Died

HONOLULU (AP)—Jan Hajdukiewicz, 28-year-old Polish interpreter to live in America, said today Stalin's death touched off wild celebrations throughout Poland.
"More vodka was drunk that night than at any time since the war," the soft spoken fugitive from communism said. "The police had to close the bars and night clubs to curb the celebration."
Hajdukiewicz arrived in Honolulu—his first stop on American soil—early today and declared: "This is one of the happiest days of my life. It is hard to believe I am really free."
Hajdukiewicz was granted asylum after he bolted a repatriation commission supervisory team Sept. 9 as it was boarding a plane in South Korea for the North.

Warn Property May Be Sold To Pay Taxes

Owners of approximately 600 parcels of land in Lee county may lose real estate in question if they fail to pay delinquent taxes to Albert Hillison, Lee county treasurer, by Oct. 19.
Lee County Judge Grover Gehant ordered the delinquent tax property sold by the county treasurer if payment isn't made by that date.

Double Congratulations!

CONGRATULATIONS were extended today to Ralph Salzman, 216 Morgan st. (left), by Public Service Co. associates as he celebrates his 30th anniversary year of service in the utility business. Roy Wilhelm, 1001 Hennepin av. (right), was similarly honored Monday on his 30th anniversary in utility work. Salzman is presently an assistant in the division vice-president's office here. Wilhelm is assigned to the company's generating station. Active in civic and fraternal affairs, Salzman is currently Excelsior Ruler of the local Elks' club. Wilhelm is a member of the Elks and the Masons. Both are enthusiastic gardeners.

Supervisors Meet Oct. 8

A regular meeting of the Lee county board of supervisors is scheduled for Thursday, Oct. 8, at 10 a.m. in the county courthouse, Sterling D. Schrock, county clerk, announced today.
All claims for payment must be filed with the county clerk by noon Tuesday, Schrock said.

Card of Thanks

I wish to thank Dr. E. S. Murphy, Dr. J. L. Palumbo and the nurses for their kindness to me while a patient at the K.S.B. Hospital, and those who visited me and sent flowers, cards and gifts.
Mrs. Amanda Salzman.

Our sincere thanks to everyone who sent us so many lovely cards and gifts during our stay at K.S.B. Hospital and since returning home. We also want to thank Rev. Paul Lechner, Dr. E. S. Murphy and the nurses at K.S.B. for their kindness to us.
Mrs. Roy Hicks and Ronnie Lee.

Two Teachers Hired to Teach Special School

Two teachers received contracts Tuesday evening at a special board meeting of the North Central Illinois Association for the Aid of Retarded Children, Inc.
Mrs. William Kramer and Mrs. George Hooper, both of Dixon, have teaching experience and special training in handling retarded children. Both are mothers.
The age range in the two classes, which are at present conducted in the Dixon armory, is six through 13. A few additional enrollments can be accepted. Anyone interested in enrolling should contact one of the officers of the association.

This is the second year for the private school and all expenses are paid by the tuition of $25 a month per child enrolled, bake sales, rummage sales, tag days and donations. There is no state aid for the parent-sponsored schools.
These children at present are the children that cannot come up to the standards as set up for a public school system, but can benefit from training in these private parent-sponsored schools. There are 21 such associations in Illinois conducting schools similar to the one now being held in the Dixon armory. In some instances these schools have reported that the children have progressed to the extent that they could enter public school and in almost every case the child can be trained to fit into the community way of life and eventually become partially self-supporting.
The officers of the association are Mrs. Carroll Boston, 718 E. Morgan, Dixon, president; Mrs. Coleman Six, 809 Inlet av., Dixon, first vice president; Mrs. Ronald Davis, 708 W. Third st., Sterling, second vice president; Mrs. Burdell Hann, Rt. 4, Dixon, secretary; Mrs. Francis Jennings, 811 Highland av., Dixon, treasurer; Mrs. G. Kenneth Smith, Rt. 3, Polo, and Jack Henderson, Oregon, directors.

Judge Orders Union to End Chicago Tieup

Ruling Called One Of Most Stringent In Illinois History
CHICAGO (AP)—A circuit judge commanded a union to order its members to end a strike Wednesday in one of the most stringent injunctions ever entered in an Illinois labor case.
Judge Robert J. Dunne ordered officers of the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers, Amalgamated Local 758, to halt its strike against the Scientific Precision Co., makers of scientific instruments.
About 200 of the company's 500 employees struck July 23 after the company refused to recognize the union on the ground its officers had not filed non-Communist oaths as provided by the Taft-Hartley law.

The company contends the strike is costing it $8,700 a day and has resulted in loss of contracts.
David B. Rothstein, union attorney, contended the court had no jurisdiction because the question of union representation of employees is before the National Labor Relations Board, placing union affairs under federal jurisdiction.
Judge Dunne overruled his own master-in-chancery, Isidore Brown, who held the petition for an injunction should be turned down.
Barnabas F. Sears, company attorney, said the injunction could be compared in stringency only with that handed down in 1948 by Federal Judge T. Alan Goldsborough against John L. Lewis and his United Mine Workers.

The injunction commanded the union officers to cease "ordering, encouraging, recommending, instructing, inducing or in any other way permitting the said strike to continue or any other strike or work stoppage of an intermittent or quickie nature, or otherwise."
The injunction also banned picketing or congregating near the plant or "stopping involuntarily" any persons who sought employment.
The union said it will appeal.

Report Crash

An accident Wednesday afternoon at Morgan street and Brinton avenue involved cars driven by Edna J. Becker, 62, of 919 N. Dement av., and Irene C. Sheets, Bettendorf, Ia.
According to police Chief Frank Tyne, who investigated, the accident happened when the Sheets car failed to stop at a stop-sign while heading east on Morgan street.
The Becker car, traveling north on Brinton avenue, ran into the sheets vehicle. No one was injured. Damage was considerable.

Piccards Tell of Dive

ISLAND OF PONZA, Italy (AP)—What's it like nearly two miles deep in the sea?

The only two men who've been there and back say it is the "quiet of the grave"—broken only "flickerings of phosphorescence that appear to be signs of some form of living creatures."
That was the word brought back to the surface by Prof. Auguste Piccard, 69, and his son, Jacques, who Wednesday went deeper than man has ever penetrated in the conquest of the watery world.

In their cumbersome-looking cigar-box shaped bathyscafe, the Piccards plunged at the rate of a yard a second into the sunless abysses of the Tyrrhenian Sea off this island, 50 miles west of Naples.

They touched bottom at 10,339 feet, almost twice as deep as man has ever gone and come back to tell about it.

The elder Piccard, wispy-thin hero of man's new challenge to the depths, is the same little Swiss professor who a generation ago—in 1932—rode an airtight balloon 10 miles high in man's first conquest of the stratosphere.

The balding scientist told newsmen and Italian Navy officers, after he had recovered from the excitement of his successful plunge, "at that depth the blackness is absolute."
He reported the last feebly filtered light from the sun disappeared before the bathyscafe reached 1,604.4 feet in its descent.

"After that," he said, "the blackness is broken only occasionally by numerous tiny phosphorescent flickers."
The calm was "unbelievable," he added, "the quiet of death."

Sgt. Alfred Wells Gets Discharge From Army

Sgt. 1/c Alfred L. Wells, 25, received his army discharge recently in Camp Carson, Colo.
Wells operated a shoe repair shop in Dixon before going on active duty two years ago. He was a member of the 4th division, Illinois National Guard.

He is the son of the Rev. A. J. Wells, formerly of Dixon and now of Oklahoma.
The sergeant served in the intelligence section of the United Nations military armistice commission which supervised the Korean armistice agreement.

Wells is married and has a son, Gary, 1. He has two sisters living in Dixon, Mrs. Audrey Tegeler, 210 Dement st., and Mrs. Loren Wade, 1018 College av.

Local Red Cross Workers Attend Group Conference

Three volunteer workers from Lee county chapter of American Red Cross attended a service group conference of 17 Northern Illinois chapters in Rockford Wednesday.
The workers attended different workshop sessions during the morning. Mrs. C. C. Clausen attended the canteen discussion; Mrs. Wayne Wolfe, social welfare aides, and Mrs. Paul L. Polts, nurses aides.

Leva Missman, executive secretary for the Lee county chapter, was present for the Gray Ladies meeting.

The main speaker for the luncheon session was Margaret Hickey, public relations editor of "The Ladies Home Journal."

Archbishop Comments on Haver Case

KANSAS CITY (AP)—The Most Rev. Edward J. Hunkeler, archbishop of the Kansas Diocese, says June Haver left the Sisters of Charity convent in a "candid and proper manner," but that he had never heard of a novitiate taking temporary leave.

In Los Angeles, the blonde, former $3,500-a-week actress said she left the Xavier, Kan., convent because of ill health Tuesday, but "I want to return as soon as I am able."

Archbishop Hunkeler said the possibility of her return "cannot be discussed until she initiates such action."

Miss Haver spent 7 1/2 months at the convent.

Mother of Bob Elson Dies at 76

OTTAWA, Ill. (AP)—Mrs. Elizabeth Elson, mother of radio and television sports announcer Bob Elson, died early today in Ryburn Memorial Hospital at Ottawa on her 76th birthday.

Mrs. Elson, who resided in Chicago at 6438 N. Hamilton av., was stricken with a cerebral attack Tuesday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Bernard O'Donnell, of Rt. 2, Ottawa. She had been active in Catholic charity work in Chicago.

Other survivors include two sons, Charles O. and William, both of Chicago, and another daughter, Mrs. Ruth E. Toomey, also of Chicago.

Mrs. Elson was the widow of Charles O. Elson.

Funeral mass will be read at St. Henry's Catholic church in Chicago Saturday.

Reynolds Doubts He'll Start Again in Series

Should Have Quit in Fifth Allie Claims

By JOE REICHER

NEW YORK — (AP) — The voice on the other end of the telephone sounded tired and dispirited.

"I don't know," the voice kept repeating. "I just don't know." A pause, then Allie Reynolds added:

"I pray and hope I can pitch. But I would have to say it's very doubtful whether I can start again. My back hurts and there is nothing I can do about it. I don't know how bad it is."

Shelled in 6th
The great New York Yankee right-hander said he wrenched his back in the third inning of the World Series opener Wednesday and reinjured it in the fifth.

The 35-year-old clutch pitcher had been firing the ball in his old-time form through four scoreless innings. He was hit fairly hard in the fifth and was shelved from the mound in the sixth. The Yankees went on to win 9-5.

Was Mistake
"I couldn't put anything on the ball in the sixth," he said.

Reynolds said he should have taken himself out of the game in the fifth.

"It was a mistake to stay in," he said, "but I wanted to win that game more than any other. I wanted that No. 7 that would have won Red Ruffing's World Series record."

Allie says the injury is a memento of a bus accident that injured several Yankees in Philadelphia last July.

Yankees Please Stengel; Dodgers Still Confident

Dressen Feels Throwing Out Of Hodges Was Turning Point

NEW YORK — (AP) — Grizzled Casey Stengel, manager of the New York Yankees, admitted "the boys played pretty good," after the Yanks' victory over Brooklyn Wednesday in the opening game of the 1953 World Series, but there was a tone of respect in his voice for the Dodgers.

The National League flag-winner "know how to play ball," he said. "You gotta be alive to play 'em."

The Yankee dressing room was comparatively quiet. The players, taking the victory in stride, simply smiled about starting the series on the right foot and settled down to showering and dressing.

Ran Out of Gas
Stengel said, "Allie Reynolds just ran out of gas, that's all," when asked about lifting his starting pitcher in the sixth inning.

Later, however, the ace right-hander revealed that he had wrenched his back in the third inning and said, "This may finish me for the series!"

Stengel, pleased with Johnny Sain's relief job, said, "he got out of a jam in the seventh with only one run and the more he pitched the better he got."

The Dodgers were solemn, but they were not downcast. "It was great the way the fellows came back after being down four runs," explained Jackie Robinson. "I think we can take 'em now."

Turning Point
Manager Charlie Dressen thought the close play at third base in the seventh inning was the turning point of the game.

The score was tied 5-5 and Brooklyn had men on first and second with none out when Billy Cox bunted. Yankee catcher Yogi Berra pounced on the ball and threw to third baseman Gil McDougald, forcing Gil Hodges.

"All I'm going to say is that it was close," said Dressen, "but if Hodges is safe, it's an entirely different ball game."

Hodges was about the most elated player in the Brooklyn dressing room. After failing to get a hit in 21 at bats in the 1952 series and going 0 for 2 in his first two trips Wednesday, the big first baseman hit a home run and a pair of singles.

"It was like coming out of a nightmare," he said.

Asked if he had any ambition of catching the early worm, Stanford Coach Chuck Taylor snapped: "We're shooting for bigger game. We've had our diet of worms and it didn't taste good. That was in the Rose Bowl of 1952."

Champs Whip Brooklyn, 9-5

Campanella's Throwing Hand Injured; Reynolds' Back Hurts

NEW YORK — (AP) — The team widely acclaimed as the greatest hitting outfit in modern National league annals, the Brooklyn Dodgers, took to bunting against the New York Yankees at the outset of the 1953 World Series.

The Yanks lead, 1 to 0, after the resultant 9 to 5 victory.

When the Dodgers started hitting home runs, the Yankees replied in kind. When the Dodgers belted Allie Reynolds from the hill and pulled ahead at 5-5, the world champions came alive again and knocked out their decisive 9-5 victory, going away.

Three Questions
As fans discussed the three hours and 10 minute struggle three subjects were uppermost. The first concerned the mental gymnastics of Manager Charlie Dressen of Brooklyn in ordering two straight bunts at the juncture when his team was threatening to break the opening contest wide open.

The second had to do with the throwing hand of Roy Campanella, the Brooklyn catcher. The third was Reynolds' aching back.

Whether Campanella will be able to operate at 100 per cent capacity in the remaining games could mean the difference between a Yankee sweep and such a tangle seven-game thriller as the same two teams waged a year ago.

Refuses X-Rays
The squat Brooklyn backstop was struck on the right hand by one of Reynolds' fast balls in the second inning. For the remainder of the game Campanella could grip neither his bat nor the ball snugly.

Wednesday night the hand was swollen, and Campanella refused to have an x-ray made. He said he intended to play in today's game.

All year the Dodgers have gone as Campanella went. When he was coming through with his long hits, Dressen's men won. When he was in a slump the Dodgers were just another ball club. If he is seriously handicapped, you may start measuring Stengel for his five-time halo.

The wisdom of Charlie Dressen in ordering two straight batters to lay the ball down in the seventh inning Wednesday was a subject of "second guessing."

Close Play
The situation was this: The Dodgers, trailing by 1-5, rapped Johnny Sain at the outset of the seventh inning for three straight singles, pushing across the tying run. They lost the game, 9-5.

Dixon to Visit Strong Sterling Friday Night

Dukes Need Victory for Good Season

Barney Feels Club Improving; Will Be Set for Warriors

It's another big and powerful team for the Dukes to face Friday night when they visit the one team Dixon needs to beat to have a successful season.

Dixon travels to Sterling to open play in the North Central Illinois conference this season.

A victory over Sterling could give the Dukes a successful season no matter how they fare over the rest of the season. And the speculation around town is that even with Kay Draper out of the lineup, this will be the Dukes' year.

Big Team
Sterling, faced with a rebuilding job at the opening of the season, has come up with a big team which in size is compared to the West Rockford club.

Like Rockford, Sterling can be expected to run mostly power plays. And like Rockford, the Warriors will work mostly from the single wing, or a modification of it.

Dixon's hopes got a boost from the return to full time duty of Pete Schuler, hard charging fullback who missed all of the Amboy game and part of the West Rockford test because of a sprained ankle.

All the Way
Sterling has run roughshod over its two previous opponents, blasting Newman, 40-6, and then stopping Rock Falls, 27-6. Dixon, meanwhile, nipped Amboy, 14-12 and then dropped a 25-9 decision to West Rockford last week.

Coach Don Barnhart reported yesterday that the team is showing more signs of improvement and added that if they show as much added experience for this game as they did for the West Rockford contest, Dixon will be in there all the way.

Sterling will rely mostly upon the ball carrying ability of John Wolf, Harold Hussong and Manuel Ramirez and the passing of Jim Eshleman, who threw two touchdowns heaves against Rock Falls. Hussong, with some good blocking, returned a kickoff 90 yards for another TD.

Fight Tonight

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Two top ranking welterweights, Art Aragon and Ramon Fuentes, both of Los Angeles, meet in a 10-round bout at the Olympic Auditorium Friday night.

Aragon, ranked sixth, hopes to land a title match with Champion Kid Gavilan this winter. Gavilan whipped Fuentes several weeks ago.

SPORTS What's Th' Score by Norm Jollow

WE'RE BUSTING WITH PRIDE this week since in 13 guesses, we came up with the right answer in 12 games last week. Not a bad average for a beginner. Now that we have had a good day, we are ready to accept the inevitable, the possibility of a bad day.

DIXON OVER STERLING: We have faith that the rough West Rockford game did us more good than the Rock Falls game did Sterling. It will be close, but we believe the Dukes have confidence in themselves.

AMBOY OVER POLO: This one could be even closer than the Dixon-Sterling tilt. We pick Amboy because we believe the Clippers have just a little more power than Polo.

OREGON OVER LANARK: This should be no test for the Hawks who are reportedly improving.

MT. MORRIS OVER MT. CARROLL: Close, but if the Mounder first stringers hold out, they will come through.

ASHTON OVER MONROE CENTER: The Aces were lucky last week and can't be expected to get into the same jam again.

OHIO OVER WYANET: The Bulldogs kept us from scoring 100 per cent last week. We hope they don't double cross us again. It will be a toughie.

ROCHELLE OVER PRINCETON: Look for the Hubs to score often in this one. They couldn't find the last white line last week but should this time.

IN THE CONFERENCE: Hall easily over DeKalb; Genesee over Rock Falls and Mendota over Ottawa.

Dixon Coach Don Barnhart reported that Max Akerman and Pat Kernan will not be ready for the Sterling game. Akerman is not expected to get his doctor's release until the end of the week and Kernan still has trouble with the bruise on his foot.

OSCAR WITZLEB, Plum Hollow Country club proprietor, is asking all members, who have clubs and gear in the locker room, to please come and get it out by Saturday. Witzleb wants to tear down the locker room and remodel it. The sooner he can get started, the better he will like it. Oscar plans many changes in the clubhouse and on the course before the season opens next year. However, the course and clubhouse will be open for sometime yet.

Rochelle Tackles Princeton In NC Conference Opener

The Rochelle Hubs, pre-season favorites to challenge Mendota for the Southwest division crown, get their first conference test Friday night when they entertain the Princeton Tigers.

Both teams are undefeated in non-league play. The Hubs dumped Batavia 20-6 but then had trouble scoring in tripping Sycamore, 6-0. Princeton romped over Walnut, 30-13, then whipped Polo, 28-6.

Rochelle Coach Buck Correll is expected to have provided Rochelle with a scoring punch as the Hubs seek to improve on their 1-3 loop record last year.

Elsewhere in the Southwest division Rock Falls, loser in its first two games, travels to Genesee, who last Friday tumbled Aledo, 20-0.

In the Northeast division Hall Township, favored to win all the marbles, travels to DeKalb. Hall has defeated Normal Community and Mendota in its warm-up tests, while DeKalb has dropped both of its games.

In a top intra-divisional game Northeast defending champion Ottawa entertains the Southwest Kingpins, Mendota. Ottawa will be out to establish itself as a threat in its BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — Ohio State's potent Buckeyes fly in today, two-touchdown favorites over a green California team in college football's TV game of the week Saturday.

California Coach Lynn (Pappy) Waldorf has spent the week drilling his squad on defenses against the Ohioans' effective split T.

The Bears are up against one of the slickest quarterbacks in the nation, John Borton, who completed 8 of 13 throws for 122 yards against Indiana.

Bulldogs Travel to Wyand in Quest of First Victory

The Ohio Bulldogs, denied twice in their quest for victory, travel to Wyand Friday night hopeful that this time they will make the grade in Little Eight conference eight-man football.

Ohio has lost two games by a margin of seven points. They bowed to Sheffield 6-0, in the opener and then dropped a 7-6 decision to Malden last week.

Wyand won its opener over Neponset, 39-0, and then fell to LaMoille 21-13 last week.

In the feature match of conference play, defending champion Sheffield and Manlius, both undefeated, clash at Manlius. The host last week ran over Neponset, 60-0, after having nipped LaMoille, 21-13, the previous week. Sheffield, after getting past Ohio, took a 26-7 decision from Buda last Friday.

In other action, LaMoille plays host to Tiskilwa, Malden travels to Bureau, and Neponset visits Buda.

Amboy Entertains Polo; Blackhawk Play Opens

Two members of the Blackhawk conference are going to win their first games of the season Friday night as the first conference action rolls around.

In the two loop tussles, Oregon is host to Lanark while Mt. Morris is at home to Mt. Carroll. Toughest tilt is a non-conference clash between loop member Polo and Amboy.

Polo and Amboy have identical records, both having won one and lost one. The comparison goes a step further, since both lost to North Central Illinois conference teams. Polo bowed to Princeton last week, 28-6, while the Clippers of Amboy dropped a 14-12 decision to Dixon in the season opener.

Polo won its opener, 22-0, over Stockton while Amboy whipped Oswego, 31-0, last week.

Oregon, which has lost both previous games by nearly identical scores, hopes to break into the win column over Lanark. The Hawks lost to Hononegah, 18-7, in the opener and then bowed to South Beloit, 19-7, last week. Lanark was tripped by Fulton, 13-0, in the opener.

Mt. Morris, which tackled the same foes Oregon battled, was nipped by South Beloit, 7-0, but then fell to Hononegah, 27-7.

Ashton Out to Clinch Rt. 72 Pennant at Monroe Center

Ashton's Aces will be out to prove that their victory over Stillman Valley last week was no fluke. The Aces won a 31-26 decision over the Cardinals last week on a last second pass in a game that created quite a storm of controversy.

Friday night the Aces travel to Monroe Center in another important game as Ashton makes its bid for the Route 72 six man football crown.

Ashton and Stillman Valley were considered pre-season favorites to win the crown and Monroe Center was expected to play the spoiler role.

Should the Aces win, it could be smooth sailing from there to the crown, as they will have disposed of both top rivals. A victory for Monroe Center would still leave the Monroe boys with a tough test coming up against Stillman which could cause a three-way tie.

Ashton will be going into the game probably without the services of fullback Neil Grover, who suffered a cracked rib in the Stillman Valley test. He is not expected to see action Friday.

In other Route 72 action, Leaf River meets Byron at Stillman Valley and Pecatonica travels to Winnebago for a Saturday tilt.

Excise Tax Talk Rapped By Democrats in Congress

Critics Say Manufacturers' Tax Swelled by 'Markups'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Several congressional Democrats opened fire today against an Eisenhower administration proposal for a national sales or excise tax at the manufacturers' level.

In the wake of President Eisenhower's news conference Wednesday, they decried such a tax, using adjectives like "dangerous" and "burdensome" and "discriminatory."

They said the man in the street probably would find himself harder hit by a manufacturer-level tax than by a retail-level tax.

"For years," the President told newsmen Wednesday, "I personally have put my adverse conclusions on such a tax (retail sales) so far as the federal government is concerned."

Report of Study

"The Treasury Department has made a study, however, and they find that all of the logic in the situation is that this is a field that belongs to local municipalities and not to the federal government."

That part of Eisenhower's statement drew a round of general applause from members of Congress. But Democratic objections arose to replies in which he declined to rule out a sales tax at the manufacturers' level.

There is little if any difference between an excise tax—sometimes called a "luxury tax," as on jewelry or perfume—and a sales tax.

While a retail tax would be applied on the goods when bought by the consumer, a manufacturers' tax would be collected on finished products as they come out of the factory. Critics contend the latter would be swelled by the time it reached the consumer, with markups all along the line, but supporters deny this.

Returns Lower

Treasury and congressional staff specialists estimate a retail tax would raise about $1,140,000,000 annually for each 1 per cent of tax imposed. At the manufacturers' level, where prices start off lower, that tax would produce an estimated 753 million dollars for each 1 per cent.

Thus a 5 per cent retail tax would raise annually about $5,700,000,000 and a 5 per cent manufacturers' tax about $3,760,000,000.

Two key members of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee—Republican Chairman Daniel A. Reed (NY) and senior Democrat Jere Cooper (Tenn)—have declared opposition to any additional taxes, barring a new national emergency.

Rep. Eberhart (D-Pa.), a committee member, contended a 5 per cent manufacturers' tax would mean an increase of up to 10 per cent in retail prices.

Rep. Dingell (D-Mich.), another member, said of a manufacturers' tax: "I'll fight it to the last ditch." He said Wednesday night on a DuMont television show:

"The most reprehensible kind of sales tax is on the manufacturers' level. If we're going to have a sales tax, let's have it on the retail basis and out in the open."

Mason (Glad)

Rep. Noah Mason (R-Ill.), another committee member, said he was "very glad" to hear the administration was giving up the idea of a retail sales tax.

He said he would support a uniform manufacturers' tax only if it were offered in lieu of the present system of sharply varying excise taxes.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP)—Illinois' state forester renewed warnings today that the state's dry forests and fields are building up the danger of record-breaking destruction by fire.

State Forester Eino Nuuttila reported that about 50 new fires have occurred in the far southern area in the last two days, burning over 1,000 acres.

"Unless rain alleviates the situation, this year might well surpass the 1932 all-time Illinois record for damage from field and woodland fires," he said.

Gov. Stratton called the fire hazard "extremely critical," and said this description applied especially to the southern part of the state.

Last fall, about 250,000 acres were burned over at a loss estimated at above five million dollars. Stratton urged citizens to take extreme precautions against starting debris and field fires, and called upon smokers and campfire builders to be alert against the same dangers.

As a fire prevention move, the State Conservation Department has closed the Mason State Forest to hunters. A year ago, drought and fire danger nearly caused cancellation of the upland hunting season. Rains lifted the threat. A conservation spokesman said he knew of no such drastic measure being considered this year. However, the traditional upland season start is Armistice Day.

Five-Year-Old Required to Sign Loyalty Oath

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—The $3 that 5-year-old Janet Gray earned two years ago modeling for an art class will be paid her by the Pasadena city schools as soon as and if she signs a loyalty oath.

Trouble is, Janet can't write her name yet, and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gray, object to signing the oath as a matter of principle.

To get her $3, Janet will be required to swear that she hasn't belonged to any party or organization advocating the overthrow of the government.

Raining Cats

SALINA, Kan. (AP)—It didn't rain cats and dogs here—just cats.

During a shower, Barbara Crook, a restaurant employee, went outside and let the awning down. Six kittens promptly fell on her.

The mother cat apparently had tucked her family in the awning for shelter.

Unveil Plan for New State Building

Springfield, Ill.—Governor William G. Stratton has released this architect's drawing of the new $12,500,000 state office building to be erected directly west of the state Capitol in Springfield.

Connected to the Capitol by an underground tunnel, the new building and its adjacent parking area will be situated on a site two blocks long and one block wide. The building's dimensions will be 381 feet by 252 feet.

The center wing of the H-shaped building will be eight stories high and the north and south wings will be seven stories high. Basement space will include a cafeteria, mechanical equipment, storage and a truck service dock.

A limestone exterior, with granite base and aluminum windows and trim, is planned. Completely air-conditioned, the building will have 445,020 square feet of gross floor space with 82 per cent of the space usable; only 18 per cent of the floor space will be taken up by service facilities such as storage, corridors and elevators.

The imposing new structure will enable the state to consolidate its agencies, some of which now are scattered in 19 various locations in downtown Springfield because of crowded conditions in present state buildings. The state pays $375,000 a year in rentals for these locations.

Women With Heart Trouble Can Bear With Greater Safety

CHICAGO (Special)—Women with heart disease now can bear children with greater safety and expectations of success than ever before, in the opinion of Dr. James A. Brussel, Queens Village, N. Y.

However, cardiac women should know the risks involved in pregnancy complicated by heart disease, he wrote in the current Today's Health magazine, published by the American Medical association.

"Perhaps the most difficult question any physician has to answer is that put to him by a woman with heart disease who asks if it is safe for her to have a baby," Dr. Brussel stated. "No single answer will apply to the thousands of such prospective mothers."

"Each case must be considered individually. Every factor—domestic as well as clinical—must be carefully weighed. No two problems are the same. After the doctor has made his diagnosis and informed the patient of the risks involved, the final decision must rest with the patient and her husband."

Heart disease complicates from one to three per cent of all pregnancies, Dr. Brussel pointed out. Ninety per cent of such complications is attributable to rheumatic fever; the remaining 10 per cent includes high blood pressure, congenital cardiac defects, and syphilis. The death rate from heart disease complicating pregnancy would be even higher, he added, if statistics included women whose deaths occurred up to two years after childbirth rather than just those who died at or immediately following delivery.

Five well-established formulations regarding cardiac pregnancies were outlined by Dr. Brussel:

1. The patient's heart condition must be considered carefully by both the doctor and the patient. Heart patients with no or only slight limitation of activity because of the affliction should have little difficulty in completion of pregnancy. Heart patients with moderate or marked limitation of activity can be expected to suffer grave and potentially fatal complications.
 2. Women over 30 who have heart trouble should be discouraged from becoming pregnant.
 3. A definite threat to successful pregnancy is auricular fibrillation, a rapid twitching of the muscular wall of the auricle instead of the regular heart beat.
 4. A patient whose heart is enlarged should be warned of the possible hazard in pregnancy.
 5. A woman who is troubled with high blood pressure not only does poorly during pregnancy, but after delivery frequently goes on to suffer greater hypertension.
- "Every cardiac pregnancy—even the seemingly very mild case—carries a certain risk," Dr. Brussel said. "Whether that risk becomes serious trouble or is kept to a minimum depends in large part on the patient's cooperation with her doctor and careful precautionary treatment. The woman with heart disease who wants to bear children can do so now with greater expectations of success than ever before."

BUYING ON THE CUFF— Above Newschart shows how consumer credit has skyrocketed since 1951. As of July, 1953, consumers owed $27.2 billion for goods and services purchased on credit. This was an increase of $4.5 billion above the July, 1952, figure. Data from Federal Reserve Board.

Northern Illinois AAUW to Convene At DeKalb Oct. 3

The American Association of University Women will hold a one-day workshop for the northern Illinois area Oct. 3 on the campus of Northern Illinois State Teachers college.

Centered around the theme, "Making Democracy Work — Education of a Free People," the conference will be addressed by the newly-elected national vice-president of the Northeast Center region, Mrs. John T. Even, Aurora. Following her keynote address, members will also hear a report of the triennial meeting of the International Federation of University Women held in London in August.

Part of the morning session will be given to workshop conferences in which state board members will preside to guide the thinking of the branches on methods and the local applications of the AAUW program.

At luncheon in Williston hall, Dr. Laura Bornholdt, international relations associate at the national level, will discuss "The Making of Foreign Policy: Myth and Reality."

Miss Katherine Walker, assistant librarian at Northern Illinois State Teachers college, is in charge of reservations.

Monthly Prison Output Worth About $10,000

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. — The industrial division of the Pontiac branch of the Illinois State prison turned out products valued at more than $10,000 a month during the past fiscal year, Warden Daniel E. Bergan reported to Department of Public Safety Director Joseph D. Bibb.

Between July 1, 1952 and June 30, 1953, value of products sold by the sheet metal department was $108,874; the foundry section, $14,018, and work done in the garage, $3,765. Total for the division was $124,658, an increase of $10,350 over the previous year.

The industrial department is part of the industrial rehabilitation program at Pontiac prison, and the products of its shops are sold only to other tax-supported bodies in the state.

Chief customer of the Pontiac industrial department is the state division of highways, which purchases road signs, barricade horses, post drivers, road gauges, tar pouring cans and similar items.

The industrial department also turns out wardrobe and storage cabinets, files, shelving, tables and other types of metal furniture.

Bergan also reported that the number of inmates at the institution has risen from 1,247 to 1,124

NO PRIVACY — Just in case you don't recognize her, this is Greta Garbo, one of Hollywood's all-time glamor queens. The former film star, arriving in New York aboard the Queen Mary, would — as usual prefer to be alone.

at the end of the fiscal year. A total of 756 inmates was received during this period and 579 were released.

OUT OF "ARDOR"

Sandy and Mac were having dinner together when, to Mac's disgust, Sandy calmly helped himself to the larger fish on the platter. "Fine manners you've got, Sandy," Mac admonished. "If I'd been in your place, I'd have taken the smaller fish."

"Well," replied Sandy with his mouth full, "you've got it!"

Stock Market Not Barometer Of Business, Says U. of I. Prof

URBANA-CHAMPAIGN, Ill. — (Special) — Breaks in security and sensitive commodity prices have little influence on business generally, and the wise business man will not be taken in by the notion that the stock market is a barometer of business, a University of Illinois economist said today.

V. Lewis Bessie, director of the University's Bureau of Economic and Business Research, notes in the "Illinois Business Review" just published, that, where the market's movements have conformed to movements of business, it has followed the trend, not led it.

The Illinois forecaster sees the recent stock market lows as reflecting only a temporary wave of "rampant pessimism" which looks for a recession merely because the level of business is so high. This pessimism does not carry over into business operations, and he believes, that, when business conditions do not justify these fears, there will sooner or later be a rebound. Over the longer run stock market values are determined by earnings and dividends and the outlook for both is good.

The letdown in agriculture does not have a generally depressing effect on business. The consumer who can buy his food more cheaply has that much more to spend on other things, Bessie points out. Total employment may in fact be stimulated, he says, because the farmer does not become unemployed and opportunities for other workers are opened up.

Some of the price declines presently being observed measure only changes in expectations, not actual changes in business. Bessie cites recent studies which show that expectations do not have an automatic effect on business.

In the present situation, none of the basic factors has changed, or is in prospect of changing so drastically within the next year, as to justify the extremes of pessimism that have already been reached. No final determination of the armament program has yet been made, and there is nothing to suggest that expenditures will be cut to the new budget estimate. Heavy industry is well protected, says Bessie, mentioning specifically the cushion to declining profits provided in present corporate income and excess profits tax laws.

Finally, residential construction stays at a high level in spite of alleged "declines." With business at an extreme high some letdown is probable, caution is advisable, but there is no occasion for panic, Bessie concludes.

Urge Caution In the Use of Art Materials

CHICAGO — (Special) — Intelligent supervision of school children using art materials will eliminate the hazards of such materials, a medical consultant wrote in the current Journal of the American Medical Association.

Although certain producers of art supplies for elementary school use seek to avoid materials that may injure health, safety in the art classroom is best provided through instructor supervision, the consultant stated, adding:

"Obviously school art crayons and paint should not contain lead, cadmium, benzol, methyl alcohol, carbon tetrachloride or kindred agents. To some extent, the natural coloring agents are less harmful than the synthetic, but there are exceptions. Wax crayons colored with aniline dyes somewhat frequently cause methemoglobinemia (a blood condition), but this is chiefly due to chewing of the waxes rather than to proper school use."

"One difficulty springs from the fact that many art materials are sensitizers and on a somewhat unpredictable basis. Even the sizing materials and fixatives common to art work sometimes serve as sensitizing agents. The pigment in some colored pencils, such as the methyl violet in indelible pencils, may serve as a direct damaging agent to the eyes, that is, particles of methyl violet from indelible pencils entering the eye are peculiarly damaging to the cornea."

"Freedom from exposure in the art classroom is more a matter of supervision than of materials. Turpentine serves as a good example. Ordinary turpentine is a toxic agent, a skin irritant, a sensitizer and readily flammable. Intelligent supervision may eliminate all these threats."

Tonsorial Tremens

TUCSON, Ariz. (U) — There was Adam Zimmerman, a barber, giving a haircut.

Then his customer suddenly bolted from the shop, leaving the money for the unfinished trim. Minutes later, he was back but stayed only long enough to inquire who had cut his hair.

Another half hour passed before he returned.

Quickly, he strode up to Zimmerman, slipped him on the face and walked back out the door.

Days Too Long

OKLAHOMA CITY (U) — Justice, slowly but surely, arrived for a county jail prisoner recently.

His release on a minor charge was issued 10 days before. Somehow it ended up in a county strong box. Then, it was found and they remembered.

The prisoner? "He was kinda mad," Deputy Giles Rathiff confided.

Scientists Pitting Antiserum Against Viruses As One of Great Hopes for Control of Cancer

By PAT McGRADY
Science Editor, American Cancer Society
BAR HARBOR, Me.—The jackpot question in research is: Will antiserum—blood loaded with gamma globulin antibodies—cure cancer?

A group of distinguished scientists—some resident and others from many parts of the United States and from abroad—met at the famous Roscoe B. Jackson Memorial laboratory here recently to seek an answer to this problem. The American Cancer society helps support the research.

Many of the scientists think that ing research in which he produced radioactive antibodies against normal tissues of laboratory animals. He produced antibodies against mouse kidney, for instance, by injecting that tissue into rabbits. When the rabbit antiserum was then placed back into the mice, the antibodies localized in the mouse kidney.

Now Dr. Pressman is preparing radioactive antibodies against some mouse cancers by the same process. The results so far show that this technique is not yet ready for use on human cancer patients. Besides concentrating in the cancers, the antibodies also settle in some of the normal mouse tissues, notably the liver. At this stage, antibody treatment might make human cancer patients sicker.

Antiserum is that part of the blood which carries antibodies—gamma globulin moulded to fit over the specific viruses and vital molecules of viruses and germs. The principle of antiserum is based upon the body's known ability to produce antibodies against large foreign cells, particles and poisons which invade the system. When the disease germs of humans are injected into horses, sheep, rabbits and guinea pigs, the animals produce antibodies which destroy the injected germs. The blood then is withdrawn from the animal, and the anti-body-rich serum is injected into human patients. In some cases, the antibodies then seek out the germs in the blood and tissues of the patient and destroy them.

Dr. David Pressman, a visitor from Memorial Cancer Center in New York, has devised a technique which brings double disaster to foreign molecules. He has prepared antibodies against specific cells and incorporated in them atoms of radioactive iodine. The radioactive antibodies then seek out their prey and destroy them, not only with the powerful chemicals that nature has devised, but with atomic rays as well.

Dr. Pressman developed his methods during years of painstaking

MICE MAY PRODUCE AN ANSWER: These tiny mice at Roscoe B. Jackson Memorial laboratory at Bar Harbor, Me., may lead the way to antibodies that could, in turn, control cancer not cause cancer in pigeons. However, when the scientist placed the chicken cancer virus in ducks and then withdrew it from the ducks, it was capable of causing cancer in the pigeons.

What has happened to the virus to make it capable of attacking a once-invincible animal?

Dr. Leon Dmochowski of Leeds University, England, another visitor to the Bar Harbor Laboratory, thinks it is possible that viruses may be able to break up into still smaller viruses — with the smaller viruses having powers of attacking cells which were immune to the larger viruses.

One indication that this might be true was presented here by Dr. Ludwik Gross of the Bronx Veterans Administration Hospital. He experiments with two strains of mice: one which develops the blood cancer, leukemia, readily when it is inoculated with a virus and a second which resists the virus.

When Dr. Gross strained the virus-freighted fluids through a filter fine enough to hold back the leukemia viruses and then injected the apparently virus-free liquid into the resistant strain of mice, it caused not only leukemia but cancer of the salivary glands as well.

Dr. Gross is inclined to believe that the fluid contained at least two kinds of viruses. He is not convinced that the larger viruses broke down into smaller viruses with new powers of changing normal cells to cancer.

But there is still a long way to go before scientists find answers to such vital questions as:

Why is each virus equipped to attack only specific kinds of cells, usually in only one or a few species?

How are antibodies manufactured by the body, and how do they fit certain molecules only—as a key fits only one lock?

What is the relationship of cell genes to susceptibility and resistance to a virus?

How do hormones increase or decrease antibody production — and hence the ability to beat off disease?

Dr. C. C. Little, Director of the Laboratory, feels that answers to such questions as these eventually may lead to the control of cancer.

Enrollment At Northern Sets Record

Enrollment at Northern Illinois State Teachers college for the Autumn quarter, 1953, of 2,275 students on the DeKalb campus is the largest in the school's history according to a report issued by the college registrar.

When the 40 students enrolled on the Lorado Taft Field campus are added to this figure, the grand total of 2,265 students represents a 13.25 per cent increase over Northern's 2,000 total in September, 1952, the report shows.

In breaking down the figures, which include those registered for late afternoon, evening and Saturday classes as well as full-time students, the registrar's report for DeKalb shows 1,990 undergraduates and 235 graduates. For the undergraduate division, women outnumber men by a 1,185 to 805 count.

Of the 235 enrolled in the graduate division, 174 are men and 61 are women.

BAKE SALE SATURDAY, OCTOBER 3rd Dixon Paint & Wallpaper Co. By North Central PTA

The new student portion of the increase at Northern this fall represents a 13.66 per cent gain over last year with a total of 807 new students. The comparable figure for Autumn, 1952, was 710. New high school students, this year, total 673 with an additional 134 listed as transfer students from other colleges.

Both the graduate and undergraduate divisions at Northern show increases this Autumn over a year ago, the report indicates. There is an increase of men, in the graduate school, from 153 in 1952 to 174 in '53. Women show a greater increase in the undergraduate division than in the graduate: in 1952 there were 980 women and this year the total is 1,185. The graduate school women's total was 67 in 1952 against 61 in 1953.

In the Extension division figures are, at this date, incomplete because of the fact that some classes in the nine northern Illinois centers are still open to registrants.

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (U) — Hunting and fishing are increasing in California.

Hunting license revenue for the fiscal year ending June 30 was more than $1,700,000, an increase of 9.5 per cent over 1951-52.

Fishing license revenue for the first six months of 1953 was $2,014,364, up 10 per cent.

Push-Button Factory Topic For Meeting

URBANA - CHAMPAIGN — The automatic "push-button" factory and system engineering will be among the developments in industrial management to be considered at the sixth University of Illinois Industrial Management Institute Oct. 29 and 30.

Executives from industries throughout the state will meet at the University's country conference center, Robert Allerton Park, near Monticello, for a two-day program on "Management in an Era of Change."

George M. Muschamp, Philadelphia, vice president of the Brown Instruments Div., Minneapolis. Honeywell Regulator Co., will discuss system engineering of both product and production methods as a step toward industry's dream of manufacturing by "push-button."

Others outside speakers participating in the program and the topics they will consider are:

John A. Patton, management engineer, Chicago, "How Can Management Regain Its Prerogatives?"

W. L. Jones, Union Electric Co. of Missouri, St. Louis, "A Management Development Program in Action."

C. E. Lundeen, Cook Electric Co., Chicago, "Inventory Control Through Records."

Joseph A. Dubbs, attorney, Chicago, "Applications of Tax Laws of Other States to Illinois Manufacturers."

George H. Williamson, Williamson Candy Co., Chicago, president, Illinois Manufacturers' Association, "Some Evolving Frontiers of Management."

Charles Waindl, industrial engineer, Aldens, Inc., Chicago, "Using Standards and Incentives in Office Work."

S. A. Birn, industrial engineer, Louisville, Ky., "Reducing Indirect Labor Costs."

George P. Hitchens, economic analyst, Ford Motor Co., Dearborn, Mich., "Function of Forecasting in Management."

H. Skerry Hall, associate professor of business management at the University of Illinois, is in charge of the program. The Institute conducted by the College of Commerce and Business Administration with the cooperation of the Illinois Manufacturers' Association, and the Division of University Extension.

Sings for Brass

FAIRFIELD, Conn. (U) — Opera tenor James Melton gave an open air concert here for 15,500 persons recently, and his only fee was a repair job on one brass lamp.

Those attending the concert were employees of the Bridgeport Brass company, members of their families and their guests. Melton sang to show his gratitude to the company for repairing a brass headlight that fell off his 1907 Rolls Royce, one of his extensive collection of antique automobiles.

FOURTH IN A SERIES:

Roads, Buildings Clue To Russian Efficiency

Construction Old Before
It Is Built; Roads Poor

Editor's Note—Here is a revealing look into Soviet construction methods—for both buildings and roads. It is given by an AP correspondent who spent nine years in the Soviet Union. This is the fourth in a series.

By TOM WHITNEY
LONDON (U) — I was out for a walk in Moscow one autumn night a few years ago. My meditations were interrupted by a roar and a crash. Across the street a cloud of dust and plaster arose. People ran from all directions.

It was easy to see what had happened. A fine Soviet building—built by Soviet standards—stood opposite me. Three floors up there used to be a balcony. The balcony had simply fallen off the front of the building.

One does not have to be an expert to realize that most of the buildings are poorly constructed and that almost the whole construction industry is inefficient and antiquated. You can see this in watching new buildings go up.

New But Old
Some buildings in Moscow look years old even before they are finished.

Most are built of brick. But the builders do not have facing brick. Instead they cover over the surface with plaster.

The plaster sometimes starts falling off before the building is even finished.

There are many brick buildings which were intended to have a plaster facing but never got it. They look even worse.

Nevertheless there has been considerable improvement in the quality of work in the postwar years. A good many steel frame structures are going up. Many are using reinforced concrete block for walls.

Almost all new houses built outside cities are still log cabins, the same as houses built in Russia 600 years ago. They are well-built in the sense that the pine logs are carefully fitted. In between the logs there is moss insulation. They are good warm homes for the Russian winter.

Waste of Wood

But they are small and just think of the waste of good wood in them!

Why is the Soviet building industry so antiquated, inefficient and costly to boot? For one thing, the government does not give the building industry enough attention. It is not putting its best brains and executives to work in this field. Also, construction workers are among the worst paid in the country.

Is construction work on industrial enterprises as bad as that on Moscow housing? I suspect that it is not much better.

One of Russia's greatest curses always has been—and still is—lack of roads.

The statistics on hard-surfaced highways are a state secret. But it is possible to estimate that the entire Soviet Union—one-sixth of the world's land surface—has fewer macadam, concrete and even cobblestone motor roads outside cities than any average-sized state of the United States.

Few Are Modern

There are a few more or less modern motor highways. Such for example are the highways from Moscow west to Minsk (built before the war) which has for a considerable part of its distance from four to six lanes, and also that from Moscow south to the Crimea (built since the war).

Once off these few main arteries, one makes the acquaintance of the Russian dirt roads. Even when the weather is dry they are frequently impassable for a passenger car because of deep ruts and holes.

When they are wet one can within a few seconds go up to an axle in the mud. Such dirt roads are only passable for trucks with high clearance—and not always for them.

Soviet industry turns out quite decent passenger cars and trucks. Soviet trucks particularly seem to be sturdy and practical vehicles.

Private passenger car ownership is increasing even though the numbers of private car owners are but a drop in the bucket of the potential market.

There may be as many as three million trucks and passenger cars.

Agree After Torture

Other prisoners say they succumbed to Red demands only after hours of mental and physical torture when it seemed the only course to save themselves and others from death.

There is tremendous sympathy for the prisoners and what they endured. Most of us wonder in our hearts how we would react in a similar situation.

The armed forces have stern rules of conduct governing combat men. The rules must be stern because the very life of the fighting units and of the nation may depend on observance of these rules. They cannot be taken lightly.

The trouble here is that the enemy fights by no rules of humane warfare and recognizes no agreement on treatment of prisoners. And so the military must apply its old rules of conduct to a terrible new situation.

In Swim Again

EASTHAMPTON, Mass. (U) — Every one has a story about the recent heat wave, but Arthur McDonald thinks his is the best.

He went for a swim in Highland Lake in neighboring Goshen and liked it.

What's unusual about that? McDonald is 87, and it was his first dip in 70 years.

Armed Forces Face Tough Problem on POW Conduct

By DON WHITEHEAD
For James Marlow

WASHINGTON (U) — The return of prisoners of war from Korea was a happy occasion that brought joy to thousands of homes. Most of us would like to ignore the other side of the story—the ugly side.

But it cannot be ignored — not if there is any real meaning to the red badge of courage worn by the living and the dead who stood fast against Red propaganda and torture. Sooner or later the armed services will pass judgment on the conduct of some prisoners while they were in the hands of the Communists.

Presumably, there will be no problem in classifying any prisoner who chooses of his own free will to remain with the Communists. He would be considered a deserter and in effect a traitor to his country.

Study Individual Cases
Secretary of Defense Wilson has said individual cases will be studied to determine if there had been "an unreasonable failure to measure up to the standard of individual conduct which is expected even of a prisoner of war, or deviations from standards of behavior prescribed by law the code of military justice."

These cases fall into three general categories:

1. Those prisoners who collaborated with the Reds and "ratting" on their comrades in order to gain favors for themselves even though it meant greater misery for others.

False Confessions
2. Those prisoners who, under pressure of threats and torture, signed false confessions and made propaganda broadcasts for the Reds which Wilson termed "contrary to the interests of their country."

3. Those prisoners who, the Reds say, have refused repatriation and have chosen to remain with the Communists. Only 23 out of more than 3,000 Americans are listed in this class, and their shocked parents refuse to believe they are acting voluntarily.

Indications have been the military will be sympathetic toward the former prisoners, taking into account their suffering at the hands of the Reds.

Dangerous Precedent

But where is the line to be drawn in an "unreasonable failure" to measure up to the standard of conduct expected of military men? There is the rub.

The easy and perhaps the popular way out would be to forget the whole thing. But such a course would set a dangerous precedent for the future.

Gen. William Dean says he told his captors they could go ahead and carry out their threats to cut out his tongue if they wished — but he wouldn't be a propaganda agent for them. He said he refused to be considered a traitor to his country. Other prisoners told of defying the Communists even to the point of risking death, and such defiance did mean death for some.

Other prisoners say they succumbed to Red demands only after hours of mental and physical torture when it seemed the only course to save themselves and others from death.

There is tremendous sympathy for the prisoners and what they endured. Most of us wonder in our hearts how we would react in a similar situation.

The armed forces have stern rules of conduct governing combat men. The rules must be stern because the very life of the fighting units and of the nation may depend on observance of these rules. They cannot be taken lightly.

After Indo-China's Rains—The Red Flood

Chinese Troops Big Question Mark as Seventh Dry Season of War Approaches

By FRED SPARKS
NEA Staff Correspondent

SAIGON—When it rains in Indo-China it seems as if someone in heaven turned on a faucet. In minutes the streets of Saigon are awash. Bicycle-propelled rickshaws hoist their slight awnings and slosh through the gutters like small outboards. Neat Vietnamese girls in tight dresses slit up the sides. Foreign Legionnaires in white pillbox hats, French officers with tanned knees under tropical shorts—all take cover in fan-cooled cafes.

Then the awful sun comes out like a slap in the face. In Saigon the water is literally sucked off the streets. But in the country, on the Tonkin airstrips next to Red China, along the vital roads feeding French outposts, the whole land is a giant puddle.

At the end of September these rains, the flash floods, will stop. Then will come another flood—the Vietnamese Communists.

Carrying fresh weapons issued in China, they will attack French and loyal Indo-Chinese garrisons, ambush convoys, and infiltrate the heavily populated deltas. The seventh dry season of war will flame in this Chinese "year of the snake."

French forces, now fat with American guns, and newly trained light Indo-Chinese infantry promise aggressive action to bleed Vietnamese areas. Except for one thing, a final decision still seems distant. That one thing, in the back of every man's mind, is: "Chinese troops."

Will the forces of General Mao, now relieved in Korea, move here? And if they do what of U. S. Secretary of State Dulles' promise that the war will then be carried to Peking by air bombings and sea blockade?

A decision is hard to come by because the Communist war is in the traditional guerrilla pattern, hidden by vast jungles so thick that movement is measured in yards. You can't kill somebody you can't find.

By sniping, harassing and dynamiting, the Communists have forced French withdrawals and the map of Indo-China has the measles. Red spots of Vietnam ring almost every city. Even Saigon is surrounded, and a white man motor-cycled out of town after dark is playing duck in a shooting gallery.

Troopers on garrison duty in the thousands of log stockades are condemned to victory. For them there can be no retreat. A few nights ago, 40 miles from Saigon, a rubber plantation stockade was assaulted by guerrillas in black silk gowns.

A traitor unlatched the gate and they poured in. Thirty defenders were killed, 30 marched off roped together like cattle.

The Communists are everywhere—and they are nowhere. As I walked down rue Catinet, a street hysteric with shouting rickshaw boys, unmuffled scooters and screaming naked children, an old friend said: "The moment you arrived, the Vietnamese knew who you were and why you came."

"They have infiltrated every office, every hotel. Most shopkeepers pay two taxes—one to the Government, one to the Communist underground. Oof—it is an insurance."

Certainly, I found French hopes down since my last visit in 1950. Many of my old soldier friends have been killed. And some politicians in Paris talk about saving money, pulling out.

They want the UN—and that means U. S.—to take over, send our young men, even as now we are sending half the dollars to finance this war.

A sharp blow to French hope was the Korean truce. Red China finances this trouble, and when the U. S. made an armistice arrangement the natives said, well, the Americans and Europeans can't whip China, they will soon go home, we cannot defend ourselves so we better play it cozy.

But while the support from home is ho-hum, the French troops here look good to me. Away from the fashionable pacifism of Paris they are honed as trim as boxers and fight well in shoulder high swamps with quiet determination.

RED MEASLES ON INDO-CHINA'S FACE: Newsmap shows how Communist forces dot the country as new Red floods threaten

To aid them there is en route from Korea the French battalion which won all the honors—across the board—for bravery and military know-how.

Like American boys I saw carry on in Korea despite disinterest and confusion back home, the French GIs fight for pride in their unit. And in the newly trained Indo-Chinese battalions I find a counterpart of our South Korean allies—bitterly anti-Communist, with Oriental willingness to accept sudden death.

MIDDLETOWN, Ohio (AP)—Here's one of the most unusual things done by returned prisoners of the war in Korea.

Pfc Roland Hamilton, 25, went to a roller skating rink eight hours after he returned home. He kept whizzing around the floor until his feet hurt.

It seems the former POW loves to skate.

Breaking Into Industry Easy 100 Years Ago

URBANA - CHAMPAIGN, Ill. —

A hundred years ago, it didn't take a lot of capital to start up in industry in Illinois. There were plenty of good opportunities for young men who had been thrifty or lucky in previous enterprises.

Donald L. Kemmerer, professor of economics in the University of Illinois college of commerce and business administration, has studied available information on 50 early Illinois industrialists to discover, if possible, how they financed their undertakings. Period covered by the study was 1830-90.

Most of these men, prior to coming to Illinois, had been engaged in trade or industry rather than farming, he found, and the money they invested had been largely saved from their previous employments. Very few acknowledged receiving family assistance or borrowing of funds, although frequently new capital was brought in by admitting a partner—who might or might not be a relative. It was also customary to start up in a small way and to "plow back" the profits in order to expand.

Kemmerer found that the majority of these manufacturers, unlike the earliest Illinois settlers, came from the East and from Europe, rather than from adjoining states.

Only three of the 50 were born in Illinois. As a whole the group appeared to be better educated or to have come from a better educational environment than the average settler.

Among the industrialists typical of the group studied were Gordon Saltonstall Hubbard, meat packer, native of Vermont, who got his start in the fur trade; John Deere, another Vermont, a blacksmith who "plowed back" his earnings from his own plows; and William Deering, also a farm machinery manufacturer who came from "down east" in Maine, and who invested capital from his eastern enterprises and from speculation in western lands. Philip Armour, from Stockbridge, N. Y., went into meat packing partly with funds from gold mining in California. Cyrus McCormick, inventor of the reaper, obtained some of his capital from partners whom he was later able to buy out.

For some of the lesser-known brands it could be a fight for survival. Dealers complain that in the 20 years since repeal an overabundance of brands has hit the market. Now the big boys are out to play for keeps.

One and all, distillers lay most of the blame for the slip in whisky sales on the federal tax of $10.50 a gallon which makes whisky look forbiddingly high priced to many folk. But something must be done if they're going to move all that liquor out of the warehouses.

Here's what a sampling of some of the nation's 239 distilleries are up to this fall in pushing sales of the higher-priced blends—mostly those in the $4.50 to $5 a bottle class.

Gets Fancy

Schenley Reserve is out in a fancy decanter—at the same price as the old round bottle. This device peppered sales of some of the straight liquors.

It'll cost Schenley money. The bottles cost more; bottling lines had to be changed; transportation costs are higher. But Schenley's director of merchandising, Don Goldstein, says the decanter already has perked up sales so that he predicts the best season in years.

Back in 1947, Schenley Reserve was the sales leader at eight million cases a year. Last year it had slipped to below three million cases. The decanter will be pushed until the holidays. Then the old round bottles will take over again.

Seagram's Seven Crown, the big postwar gainer, and now the pace setter at eight million cases a year, is launching its heaviest advertising campaign in history and has expanded its sales force. It says: "No gimmicks," but insists it is confident of holding its place.

Calvert Reserve, second-place seller at slightly under 3½ million cases, and its running mate, Lord Calvert (now approaching the one-million cases a year mark) will be out in another week in their holiday garb.

But they have another gimmick—called the home bar carton—which this summer cashed in on the popularity of gin and tonic. Calvert puts a bottle of whisky and a bottle of gin in the same carton (the same idea as putting three soap bars in a package). The carton contains drink recipes and also bottle cappers for soft-drink mixers. Calvert says this has sold whisky to a lot of gin fanciers.

Distilleries Begin Bitter Battle of Whisky Blends

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK (AP)—Whisky makers are starting a bitter battle of the blends.

Between now and the year's end—the period in which liquor men usually chalk up 40 per cent of their annual sales—dealers will be wooed with better profit margin offers.

Consumers will be wooed with gimmicks and extras, mostly eye appeal—but with very few price concessions.

For some distillers it's a matter of trying to crawl out from under an embarrassing over-supply of whisky in their warehouses. Straight whisky has been selling well, but sales of the blends of whisky and neutral spirits have been slipping in recent years.

Stiff penalties are imperative, authorities believe, to curb the mounting totals of deaths and injuries caused by trigger-happy hunters who mistake human beings for deer and other game.

Writing in the October Reader's Digest, William Chapman White states that "officially reported" accidents in the hunting season last year totaled 1,982, with 390 deaths. Not all accidents are reported, and 10 states do not even keep records. Hence last year's death toll was "certainly at least 500," White says. Michigan alone reported 25 fatal accidents; Pennsylvania followed closely with 24.

The author urges that reporting of accidents be compulsory, that victims or their survivors be encouraged to file civil suits, as in highway accidents, and that the license of a hunter causing injury or death be revoked until he has been proved blameless.

Other reforms are needed, White believes, particularly in the teenage group. Last year, in most states, hunters under 17 were responsible for a fourth of all accidents. Licenses are obtainable at 16 in the majority of states; in New Jersey the minimum age is 14; in for other states it is only 12.

New York, concerned about the problem of the teen-ager and his gun, requires all hunting-license applicants under 21 to present a certificate from an "approved agency," such as the National Rifle Assn., as proof of "satisfactory training in the safe handling of firearms." Since this program was effected three and a half years ago, accidents involving the under-21 group in New York State have been cut by more than 75 per cent.

Most authorities believe that more publicity about accidents would make a hunter think twice before he shoots. Many hunting accidents have no witnesses, the author points out, and those who kill or wound a man because they "thought it was a deer" are seldom punished. Local juries are often unwilling to convict, feeling that mitigating circumstances make penalties too severe. Only a few states revoke the license of a person proved negligent.

GLENDALE, Calif. (AP)—It may take an act of the State Legislature for Kenneth O. Newhouse to cash his pay check.

Back in 1950 he earned $235.40 from Los Angeles County and then lost his check.

Newhouse found it a few months ago, but was informed by the County Board of Supervisors that the law requires the check be cashed within two years. Only the State Legislature can change the law.

FATHER KNOWS BEST

Each time I put our two-year-old on the closed front porch to play, he objected violently when I locked his gate to make sure he stayed there. Then one day my husband put the youngster in his "playroom" and locked the gate, and for once he didn't scream but played happily by himself.

My husband's explanation was simple. "I just told him I was locking the gate," he said, "so that you couldn't get in and bother him."

American Ambassadors in Bluejeans

4-H Youths Spread Good Will in Europe's Farm Fields

AMERICA'S Carol Vandiver meets a prize sheep during IFYE visit in Middle East.

By PATTI SIMMONS

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — The biggest thing to hit Europe since the Industrial Revolution is a delegation of American ambassadors wearing bluejeans.

The grass-roots envoys have the green light from the State Department to sell America as they travel in France, pitch hay in Austria, drive oxen in Greece, trade goats in Tunisia or chop down trees in the forests of Finland.

This unique "first-come, first-served" called the International Farm Youth Exchange, includes both boys and girls. A look at their letters back to the National 4-H Foundation here shows how they're working in the fields of Europe, fighting anti-American feeling with a hay rake or a pie like-mom-used-to-bake.

Alison Saylor, a Kansas farm girl, writes: "I shall always remember the morning when I tilled the soil of Sweden after receiving a lesson on how to drive the big diesel tractor from my host who did not speak English. We invented some new words and after a trial run I was on my own. It seemed good to be contributing to the growing of plants for food on the other side of the world. I began to realize how much alike all people are, for they have only different methods of gaining the same things."

There's Gordon Lee Ford, a lad from Arkansas who lived with a Communist for five weeks in Belgium.

"He was a hired hand on the place," writes Gordon. "As we worked we would talk about the many things that interested him, which he had a different idea of. But he also began to believe the American way of life before I left, partly because I worked beside day after day and ate the same food he did."

These surefire international relations grew out of a simple question asked by farm youth groups towards the close of the last war: "What can we do so it won't happen again?"

One thing, they decided, would be furthering understanding between farm people at the family level.

So in 1948 IFYE's two-way program got underway. Americans went off to harvest the crops of Europe; foreigners arrived to sample life down on the farm U. S. style.

Barbara Funkhouser of New Mexico says it's amusing how floored most Europeans are when they discover American girls can work with their hands. She pitched right in milking cows and cooking for her Belgian farm family.

When a Scotch wife said peeling potatoes was too dirty a job for 21-year-old Betty Jane Bell, the latter smiled. "If I peel potatoes in Tennessee, why shouldn't I do them here in Scotland," she asked.

Whereupon the farm wife remarked to her husband, "I suppose we were all wrong."

Eloise Cooksey of Kentucky is enjoying the social life of Germany as well as the work. "They were surprised to find I could waltz," she writes, "since they think America is the land of boogie woogie and jitterbug. I feel at home among the young people. It doesn't seem possible that we could have been at war with them seven years ago."

One foreign couple went to the station to welcome their American guest and missed her. She was there, all right. But they were looking for someone in high heels and fancy clothes, the way American girls always look in the movies.

From England, a similar tale from Elois Taylor of New Hampshire who writes, "They expected to have two girls arrive with false eyelashes, always smoking and who had been in Hollywood. So we are happy to report that now they have a better picture of American youth as we really are."

In Tunisia, Navy Air veteran Robert Hume of Greenfield, Mass., told his farm friends how he worked his way through college, how he managed to buy a car and in time a second-hand refrigerator.

"As we talked with each other," Hume says, "we found it fascinating to see how much alike we were and when I would say, as a conclusion, 'why have a war?' they were ready to agree."

In Syria 20-year-old Frank Waters became such good friends with the Arab hands he ate in their tent out of the common bowl.

It works the other way, too. Farmers coming here from far away places like India are surprised how hard we work and impressed with the great dignity of labor in this country.

By the end of this year more than 400 Americans will have participated in the program since it began. The number of foreigners from Africa, South America, the Middle East and Europe to this country will hit about 350.

After living abroad from four to six months, exchangees return home where they tell community

Education Lacking

BELGRADE (AP) — Yugoslavia's educational system is drawing down sharp criticism here as a result of this year's census showing that approximately 25 per cent of the population still cannot read or write.

The Communist newspaper "Borba," voice of President Josip Broz Tito's government, termed the finding "highly unsatisfactory," and noted that the present literacy figure of 75.1 per cent was only 0.5 less than five years ago despite a mass education drive.

Orange seeds were brought to Haiti by Columbus on his second voyage, in 1493, says T. E. Murphy in the October Reader's Digest. By the 16th century oranges were plentiful in Florida. The first sizable grove in California was planted by a Jesuit priest in 1804. Today Americans consume more oranges — about a pound a week per person — than all other major fruits combined.

Transplanting Tissues Mark Opening of New Era in Surgery

The transplanting of live tissue from one human being to another and "banks" for tissue storage mark the opening of a new era in medicine, says J. D. Ratcliff in an article condensed from Today's Health. Ratcliff tells how the familiar technique of the corneal transplant is being extended to include other parts of the body.

In New York recently a young woman died of heart failure during an operation. With the consent of her parents a segment of her artery was removed and placed in the body of another young woman suffering from a faulty artery near her heart. She was restored to health and now has every prospect of a long life.

Now Regular Such surgery, once impossible, is now performed regularly because of artery banks in about a dozen cities. Heretofore, surgeons could cut out the defective portion of artery and try to stitch the remaining ends together, or merely tie off the artery ends, hoping a bypass circulation would result. In such cases, transplants from artery banks are lifesavers, Ratcliff says. The banks have only one source of arteries: The dead. Arteries must be taken within six hours of death, from persons who were under 45 and free of infectious or wasting disease. Recent research indicates that arteries may be "freeze-dried" and stored for periods up to a year.

Bone banks, now available in most large cities, supply the bone needed to repair accident injuries, to lengthen legs shortened by disease and to stabilize weakened spines. For such work surgeons formerly had to rely on bone taken from the patient's body. Today's sources of bone include ribs removed in surgery, bone from "clean" amputations and bone from the dead. Shipped to hospitals throughout the world, such bone has saved hundreds of war-wounded from lives of disability.

An Experiment The skin bank is still in the earliest experimental stage, Ratcliff says. Tests indicate, however, that skin may be successfully stored for several weeks. Such skin provides an excellent dressing, in cases of severe burns, until replaced by the patient's own. Cartilage banks are used mainly by surgeons in repairing noses, ears and foreheads. Recent work in England shows that cartilage from young cattle is as satisfactory for this purpose as human cartilage.

Most deaths are due to a single weakness in an otherwise sound body, Ratcliff points out. It is the aim of the tissue banks to replace the weak link with a strong one.

Although Leoncavallo composed other operas, "Pagliacci" was his only successful one.

State Food Procurement A Model Plan

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. — (Special) — The state of Illinois, under the administration of Gov. William G. Stratton, is rapidly gaining recognition as a leader in food procurement practices.

Robert D. Patton, state purchasing agent, announced today that his office has received inquiries from the state's food specifications from state purchasing agents or similar officials in Ohio, Missouri, Mississippi and Indiana.

Patton said three representatives of the purchasing division and the welfare department of the state of Ohio were in Springfield Monday to compile information on the Illinois procedure.

Inquiries on Illinois practices by the purchasing agent of the state of Missouri have resulted in that state's complete adoption of the Illinois food specifications.

The state purchasing agent in Indiana and the Board of Trustees for Mental Institutions in Mississippi have made similar inquiries, Patton said.

One of the Illinois requirements on food procurement is that food inspections be made on state purchases by graders of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Illinois also requires that the cost of these inspections be borne by the contractor.

An extensive list of specifications for each food category also has been drawn up. Indexed copies of these specifications will be provided the Ohio representatives, Patton said.

"WASHDAY" IN THE STRONG ROOM—Supervising her "laundry" workers, the representative of a British insurance firm watches as bank employees convert a vault of the Bank of Brussels into a drying room for some of the $280 thousand in American and British banknotes, recovered from the sunken wreck of the Flying Enterprise, which foundered off Falmouth, England, in January, 1952. The Flying Enterprise was the ship on which Capt. Kurt Carlsen made his heroic, but futile, one-man fight against the sea.

MOTOR-BIKE DA VINCI—Taking a tip from da Vinci, the great Renaissance painter who envisioned a "flying machine" centuries before it became a reality, this Parisian painter uses his 'cycle to transport him to his subject matter. Once at the scene, the two-wheeler doubles as a comfortable seat.

THANKS, BUT NO THANKS—Few people would want to trade jobs with these men, but handling dangerous snakes doesn't phase Gregg Dearborn, George Marshall and Cecil Tibbetts. The trio are animal trainers at Benson's Wild Animal Farm at Hudson, N. H. The slippery armful they are handling are three boa constrictors and three rock pythons.

UNDERWATER "AUTOGRAPH"—Welding an underwater cutting torch instead of the pen used by his famous namesake, diver Bernard Shaw demonstrates the art of cutting metal under water, at marine engineering and welding exhibit in London. The embryo submarine artists are Dennis Callum, 12, left, and Alan Brang, 11.

HIGH-FLYING BUS—No, your eyes aren't deceiving you, it is a high-flying bus. But it's a rubber inflated one used by the Isuzu Motor Company as an advertisement in Tokyo, Japan, where balloon advertising is enjoying a boom.

LAST TRAIN TO YESTERDAY—You might not believe it, but this is a real locomotive crossing highway 99 in Seattle, Wash. The Great Northern Railroad's No. 1246 was making its last run, bound for Woodland Park where the 100-ton engine will be placed on exhibition.

TINY TUNER—Wrist space is usually reserved for a watch, but the Army Signal Corps thinks it's a good place to wear a radio. This is a close-up of the Lilliputian receiver which has transistor-type units replacing the standard vacuum tubes. The knob on the outside of the case is used for tuning in signals. While the unit is unable to transmit, it can pick up signals in a 40-mile radius.

BIRDMAN—Inventor Pietro Guitini, known to his Perugia, Italy, townsmen as the "Flying Madman," shows part of his wing-like flying machine with which he hopes to fly by imitating the birds. Halted by police once, Guitini hopes to get their permission after he's made some improvements on his flying machine.

ENEMY SUBS BETTER BEWARE—Most unusual feature of the latest British aerial submarine hunter is its three-way-fold wings. The plane, which was recently demonstrated at Farnborough, England, is now in super priority production.

RIDE 'IM, ROLAND!—Roland La Storza goes western at Greenwood Lake, N. Y. The challenger hopes to prove how tough he really is when he tackles Rocky Marciano for the heavyweight title at the Polo Grounds, Sept. 24. (NEA)

HEARTBREAK ON THE HIGHWAY—His friend was hit and killed by a speeding automobile, and this little dog can't understand what has happened. Knowing only that something is terribly wrong, he keeps a tireless vigil over the body, determined that nothing more shall happen to his comrade. For more than nine hours the grieving pup kept his hopeless watch by the side of U. S. Highway 309 outside Allentown, Pa., until Humane Society agents relieved him of his vigil.

AT THE MOMENT, HE'S THE PUBLISHER—Graham Jones, 9, of Chesterton, Ind., assumes the role of publisher as he scans an edition of his Porter Times. In just a moment, he'll be paper boy for his 11-copy circulation in Porter County, and a few minutes after that he's apt to be reporter, printer, compositor, or an angry writer of letters to the editor. The circulation manager (Graham Jones), looks for an increase in copies sold.

ODD VIEWPOINT—No, this isn't an interstellar space ship, it's only the rear of a De Havilland 110. The plane, being developed for the British navy, was on display at the Farnborough, England, Air Show.

THIS IS A ROOF?—This saddle-shaped hanging roof of the "Black Forest Hall" in Karlsruhe, Germany, will have no center supports. Concrete pillars spaced throughout the glass walls will support the unique three-inch-thick steel and concrete roof. Designed by Prof. Erich Schelling, the hall will be used for indoor sports events, exhibitions and rallies. It will cost about $4500.

SPEEDY SCULPTOR—Working against time is easy for sculptor Carlo Tallabue as he works to complete a bust of model, Margery Leighton, at a meeting of the Society of Western Artists, in San Francisco, Calif. It took Tallabue, a teacher of painting and sculpturing, 20 minutes to complete the bust.

FLYING "T" FORMATION—Ancient Model "T"s, completely restored, take to the air at Cape May, N. J., for transport to Cleveland, Ohio, where they will be entered in the 7th annual revival of the Glidden auto tours—tours started originally in 1904 to "demonstrate the reliability of the automobile." Owned by former Navy pilot, Ralph Cox, Jr., 38, organizer of United States Overseas Airlines, they are, from left, a 1912 "Gentleman's Roadster," a 1909 touring car, and a 1910 Torpedo. The ancient drivers will wheeze along from Cleveland to Dearborn, Mich., with 341 other antique cars, from Sept. 13 to Sept. 19.

Gaddy's Geese: Wild in Summer, Tame in Winter

By HENRY LESENE
NEA Special Correspondent

ANSONVILLE, N. C. — A few miles from here thousands of wild Canada geese act tamer than chickens in the backyard. They accept food from your hand and carry on their incessant chatter and squabbling unmindful of human observation.

And if this is considered one of nature's mysteries, then here's another: Year after year the great flock of wary game birds come from their summer mating grounds far in the north, and unerringly find a geographic pinpoint in North Carolina.

There's no coastline or river to follow. The pinpoint — a three-acre lake — is surrounded by fields and woods pretty much like thousands of others the geese must pass over in their long flight from the north.

They arrive each year about mid-October on or near a full moon and they depart in mid-March, also on a full moon. They're known as Gaddy's geese. Lockhart Gaddy was a hunter who put up his gun and made his farm and fish pond a private refuge.

Thousands of winter visitors to North Carolina make it a point to see the spectacle of Gaddy's geese. Ansonville and Gaddy's private refuge are just a few miles from the famed winter resorts of Pinehurst and Southern Pines.

Gaddy died last winter, but his widow, who shared his love for the birds and worked with him in establishing the unique refuge, along with his neighbors, carry on the project as a sort of memorial to the benefactor of the game birds. They say there'll always be Gaddy's geese.

The geese knew Gaddy for nearly 20 years. The first to make friends with him were a few live decoys he retained after ending his hunting days. Then a flight of nine big Canadas was attracted to the little pond by the decoys.

AS TAME AS CHICKENS, wild Canada geese literally eat out of your hands during their winter sojourn at Lockhart Gaddy's private refuge in the North Carolina sandhills.

In recent years some 8000 to 10,000 Canadas find refuge at Gaddy's place.

Soon after he began making friends with the geese, feeding them became a problem. First he started accepting contributions. Finally he fixed a nominal charge of 25 cents for each adult visiting the refuge. Visitors can also buy small packets of corn and stale bread on the premises and feed the wild geese.

All the birds at the strange refuge migrate except a few cripples and a pair of domestic white geese. The cripples, with shattered wings or legs shot away, stay the year round. However, at least one old goose with only one leg and known as "old Joe" migrates regularly with his able-bodied companions.

The domestic geese are 41 years old and appear perfectly at home and at ease with their wild cousins, which are said sometimes to reach an age of 60 years.

Many school children visit the refuge to make observations in nature study that would take years otherwise. The geese are always alert, however, for any suspicious movement and when something out of the ordinary happens that they consider a danger signal, they may take off en masse.

The old-time whittlers are rapidly being replaced by chisellers.

Price of Meat Down a Little

By The Associated Press

Housewives plagued by steadily rising meat prices will get a respite this week—beef and pork prices will be lower in many of the nation's food markets, and in some areas lamb will be cheaper, too.

Many stores nominated beef cuts such as rib roasts, steaks, chuck roasts and ground beef as the best buys for the weekend. Reductions will range from two to four cents a pound.

Pork chop prices, which have climbed rather spectacularly in recent months, also will be lower. One nationwide chain said it planned reductions of four cents a pound in New York, eight cents in Washington, D. C., and 10 cents in Pittsburgh. In Chicago, an exception to the general trend, the price will be hiked eight cents a pound by the chain.

A New York coffee roaster announced it will raise the wholesale price of coffee by three cents a pound on Monday. That will bring the wholesale figure up to 92 cents a pound. The firm blamed increasing costs of green coffee.

A nationwide marketer of coffee said it had no plans for a similar increase, however.

World's largest living creature, the whale, is many billion times as heavy as the world's smallest, a tiny kind of germ.

Illinois Guidance Experts Schedule 2-Day Conference

DEKALB, Ill. — "Continuity in Guidance" is the theme of the Ninth annual conference of the Illinois Guidance and Personnel association to convene on the campus of Northern Illinois State Teachers college Oct. 9 and 10.

Dr. Ernest E. Hanson, dean of men at Northern and treasurer of the Illinois Guidance and Personnel association, announced the two-day meeting will have 175 state-wide and nationally-known guidance experts as participants on its program.

In explaining the underlying purpose of this year's conference, Dr. Hanson said:

"Teachers have become more aware each year that guidance services are needed at all grade levels from kindergarten through the last year of college. Such a conception requires schools to provide counseling, adequate records, the follow-up of each child from grade to grade and also after he leaves school permanently. But this emphasis upon continuous guidance will be relatively useless unless the total guidance program is guided by goals which have great moral and spiritual significance.

"The program committee, in planning the conference was governed by this point of view," he continued. "Throughout all the years of guidance from kindergarten onward, the total mental, physical, moral and spiritual well-being of each child must be the major motive and chief objective."

Serving as chairman of the program committee is Angeline Gale, guidance counselor, Naperville, Ill., high school. She is assisted by Dr. Hanson, two other Northern staff members, and 12 other guidance personnel from many parts of the state.

Safety Reminder

RALEIGH, N. C. — North Carolina automobile license plates urge motorists to "Drive Safely." The slogan printed on the auto tags is part of a drive to reduce highway accidents.

Motor Vehicle Commissioner Edward Scheidt said North Carolina is the first state to use a safety slogan on its license plates. He originally planned to have the slogan appear on 1954 licenses. It was put into use six months ahead of schedule when heavy automobile registration made it necessary to order a new series of 1953 plates.

Heavy Sleeper

DENVER — Anthony Gentile told police that before going to sleep in his room he had placed a billfold containing $25 under his pillow. When he awoke, billfold and money were gone. So was the pillow.

Tax Dilemma Faces Ike In Spring

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK — President Eisenhower's tax troubles seem sure to become acute next spring.

It makes some businessmen wonder whether the country may be in for another era of deficit financing. They note that Defense Secretary Wilson hints at defense spending being cut down to 40 billion dollars next year.

But they say that isn't enough to ward off a big deficit, if receipts fall off as presently expected, and scheduled tax cuts fore-shadow.

Recent trends toward lower interest rates could be setting the stage for an easier transition into a deficit financing era, bankers note. Others wonder if the alternative of new taxes isn't more likely. The one most talked about is some version of the sales tax, by whatever name they decide to call it in Congress.

The President's dilemma, as many businessmen see it, is this:

In January the excess profits tax on business is scheduled to die, and also individual income tax rates are due to come down about 10 per cent. If they do, the U. S. Treasury will lose about five billion dollars in revenue.

In April a scheduled cut in excise taxes and a scheduled dip in the ordinary corporate income tax rate to 47 per cent from the present 52 per cent. If they go through, would mean a loss of another three billion dollars in revenue.

Although Defense Secretary Wilson hopes for a two billion dollar cut in defense spending, that and other promised economies won't be enough to offset the tax loss.

See Deficit

Present prospects are for a Treasury deficit of around four billion dollars this fiscal year.

Unless the government finds other sources of revenue to make up for those scheduled to drop off early next year the prospects of balancing the books by June 30, 1955, appear slim.

That is what is behind all the beating of the drums for a federal sales tax, or a manufacturer's excise tax.

The fact that next year is a congressional election year makes many businessmen doubt that Congress will vote new taxes.

So they eye the chances of more deficit financing—that is, increasing the federal debt next year. The Treasury now thinks it can squeeze by the rest of this year without much trouble.

Cost of Running Auto Is 'Startling,' Says Observer

The true costs of running an automobile are "startling," says an October Reader's Digest article condensed from Changing Times. If you drive your car 10,000 miles a year you're probably paying 10 cents a mile, or more than $1,000 for this service. That figure may jolt you, but it may also serve to point out what's at the root of your budget trouble.

The article divides the costs of running a car into two categories: fixed and operating. Depreciation is the biggest fixed expense. On a car two years old or less, annual depreciation will amount to a flat 20 per cent of the purchase price, including all extras and financing costs. On older cars, figure depreciation this way: Consult the used-car ads for average quoted prices for the same model as your own. Say it's $1200. Probably that figure is inflated to allow for bargaining, so deduct 10 per cent, leaving you $1080 as the value of your car. Subtract that from the original purchase price and divide the result by the number of years you've had your auto. The figure is your depreciation cost for one year.

If you drive more than 18,000 miles in a year, charge extra depreciation of nine to 10 cents a mile for all mileage over 18,000.

Add to fixed costs your yearly premiums on all automobile insurance, and the cost of license fees and property tax on cars if this tax is levied in your area. Then, as a final item of fixed costs, figure the interest, at three per cent, which you would draw on the money your car cost if you hadn't bought it.

Operating expenses include gasoline, oil, tires, maintenance (greasing, washing and repairs) and miscellaneous, such as parking fees, inspection, tolls, anti-freeze, a new battery, etc.

Be honest with yourself about gas and oil consumption, the article urges. The figure used by the author who drives a 1952 Chevrolet, is 1.9 cents a mile for gas. Average cost for oil is about .1 cent a mile, for tires .5 cent, for maintenance .7 cent, and for miscellaneous .1 cent.

Adding up all costs, the author found he had a figure of $1042.28 a year for 10,000 miles of driving. What's yours? he asks. Anything like the amount you guessed before you figured it?

The hula dance is not native to Hawaii, writes George T. Eggleston in the October Reader's Digest, but was brought there by the Tahitians when they conquered the Hawaiian Islands centuries ago. The hula of Hawaii today is a very mild version of the original hula of Tahiti—a traditional dance which missionaries have not been able to change.

Old Loafers Never Die, They Merely Loaf Away

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—"Strive to loaf if you would succeed in living longer."

That could well be every man's motto in these tense times. For it is now an accepted medical fact that too much hard work and exercise may kill you or drive you crazy.

Since health has been hailed as the nation's first line of defense—and loafing helps keep you healthy—the problem before us all is:

Loaf Successfully

"How can I become a successful loafer?"

The answer depends on how healthy you really want to get. How much time and lack of effort are you willing to put into loafing?

Plain, old-fashioned, 24-karat loafing is a genuine art. And like any other art it requires trained skill, know-how, and selfless dedication.

The born loafer is as rare as the born Rembrandt. You have to start young and keep everlastingly at it. Steady does it.

Suppose you wanted to become the healthiest, longest-lived loafer in the annals of this reviving art. How could you best work toward . . . er . . . that is, achieve this goal? Well, here are some tested principles:

Rid Your Cares

To begin with, you must erase from your mind all other cares or worries, all dreams and desires, all feelings of personal guilt.

You'll feel healthier at once. Next, quit your job. Notice how soon that tired businessman feeling goes away?

Then you marry a fine, strapping, wholesome woman able and willing to take in washing. This will relieve you of financial worries, and if you need a clean shirt you can steal it from the laundry of one of your wife's clients.

Now, where to loaf? The best place on sunny days is a park bench.

To keep from brooding when you're loafing by yourself, the best thing is whittling. That'll keep your mind empty and your hands occupied.

Rainy Days

On rainy days the best place to loaf is in a courthouse. Nothing else makes a loafer feel more superior than sitting in a courtroom listening to all the trials, tribulations and lawsuits working people get themselves into.

Hunger is the only thing that ever interrupts a real loafer, busy at his art. But a wise one never overeats. He knows he can't loaf well if he's sick.

The most perilous pitfall for loafers—outside of job offers—is a pool hall. Pool halls have wrecked more good loafers than honest toil. The danger in loafing around pool halls is that you will get interested in the game, start playing it yourself for money, and thus get yourself involved in the cares and affairs of mankind.

Remember your reward: Old loafers never die. They just loaf away.

Each 39-foot section of rail used in the standard railroad track weighs more than two tons.

EARLY CHRISTIAN ART REDISCOVERED—A young tenant of an old Milan, Italy, building looks at an old fresco which was recently discovered in the building's unused attic. Plaster crumbling off the walls led to the discovery of the well-preserved piece of art, showing Christ on the cross. Experts feel that the figure of Christ may be only part of a large fresco underneath the entire wall of the attic.

Women Bankers Versed In 'Stretching' Dollar

By DOROTHY ROE

Women, says a woman banker, often make the best bankers.

This may be because they have had long experience with stretching a dollar, guarding a piggy bank and wrestling with a grocery budget.

Also, women take a realistic view of money. Men are likely to talk of it in large round numbers, adding a few digits to make things sound good. Women will announce the price of a dress as $12.98, and men will describe it as "somewhere under $15." That extra $2.02 means a pair of stockings and a manicure to a woman, but to a man it's not worth talking about.

It's an attitude of mind, says Ann Javits, one of the first women in America to hold an executive position in a metropolitan bank. Miss Javits, vice president of the Commercial State Bank and Trust Co., of New York, has been with this institution for 29 years. She started in 1924 as a secretary. She worked in practically every department before her advancement to assistant vice president in 1951, and this year to vice president and manager of the personal loan division. Says she:

Big Business

"Big business is people. That's what it always has meant to me. I always have tried to make personal contact with as many customers of the bank as possible. I can tell more in five minutes of personal conversation with a man than I can by pages of credit references. You have to bank on character."

During her long career in banking Miss Javits has stressed the personal element. She explains: "Too many people think of banking as a cold, impersonal business. Actually it should be the exact opposite. A bank must deal with people and invest in character if it is to succeed. A hand shake and a greeting from an officer of the bank can mean more than an annual report to the average depositor."

There's nothing makes a mooching bus rider so mad as to have a fellow passenger, with a newspaper he's reading over his shoulder, turn a page too soon.

Dublin Beauty Admires Our U. S. Women

By DOROTHY ROE
AP Women's Editor

American women are even more remarkable than American skyscrapers, in the opinion of Sybil Connolly, the Dublin beauty who in a brief six months has taken the field of international fashion by storm.

Her admiration for American women is inspired, not by feminine tycoons and careerists, but our housewives and mothers. They amaze her by the ease with which they raise large and handsome families, run complicated households, entertain on a lavish scale and manage to look like debutantes when the occasion demands it. Says she:

Wonderful Thing

"The most wonderful thing I have seen in America is its family life. It has been a surprise, because in Europe our impression of the United States is gleaned principally from Hollywood, and we have the idea that easy divorces and multiple marriages are the accepted thing throughout the country.

"Now that I have visited some American homes I realize that the women here are much better mothers and housekeepers than those in Ireland, where even low-income housewives have at least one maid, and where the wife and mother doesn't have to lift her hand unless she wants to."

She's Amazed

"I'm constantly amazed at the way American women raise their families and run their homes with little or no domestic help and seemingly with such little effort."

This new glamor girl of the fashion world is loyal to the charm of the Irish, but admits, after sober thought, that she would not be adverse to the idea of marrying an American, because—

"They seem to be such good husbands."

Brown Beef Stew Is Dish Filled With Nourishment

BROWN BEEF STEW makes a delicious dish that is also easy on the pocketbook. All sorts of vegetables make it heartful, too.

By GAYNOR MADDON

With so much lean grass-fed beef in the market at favorable prices, now is the time to feast on economical stews. Here's expert advice from Chicago on the perfect stew.

Brown beef cubes thoroughly in a small amount of hot fat. A good stew must cook slowly for several hours in water or other liquid.

Add only enough liquid to cover the bottom of the pan. Cover the pan tightly, and simmer slowly for about an hour and a half. Add additional liquid if needed.

About 30 minutes before the end of the cooking time, add pared vegetables and continue to cook until vegetables and meat are tender.

Favorite Brown Beef Stew (4 servings)

One pound beef or veal shoulder (boneless), 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, ½ teaspoon paprika, ¼ cup flour, 2 tablespoons fat, 1 cup water, 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce, 1 teaspoon Kitchen Bouquet, 1 tablespoon catsup, 4 medium potatoes (pared), 4 medium carrots (pared), 4 medium onions (peeled).

Cut meat into 4 to 6 pieces. Roll in blended salt, pepper, paprika, and flour to coat each piece and brown in fat in a heavy kettle. Add water and seasonings and simmer about 2 hours. Add the prepared vegetables.

Cover and cook until vegetables are tender. Serve piping hot. (If the broth is too thin, thicken it with a tablespoon of flour mixed with ¼ cup cold water. Boil, stir and taste).

Air pollution caused by exhaust gases from autos and other incomplete combustion of hydrocarbons, such as from industrial plants, now can be detected by using a new, stainless steel "cold bomb."

Chaplin Sells Studio Where He Was Star

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Charlie Chaplin has sold the studio where he strutted to film fame as a tramp in the years before he became a controversial figure denied reentry to the United States.

A real estate firm, Webb and Knapp, of New York City, has bought the nearly five-acre property for $650,000 cash. On part of its 300-foot frontage along Sunset boulevard a major supermarket will be built.

Chaplin built the studio in 1918 for $35,000. Movies he made there included "Shoulder Arms," "The Kid," "The Gold Rush," "City Lights," "The Great Dictator," "Monsieur Verdoux" and, more recently, "Limelight."

The 64-year-old comedian-producer said in London last April that he was giving up residence in the United States because "lies and vicious propaganda" handicapped his movie work.

He is living in Switzerland with his fourth wife, playwright Eugene O'Neill's daughter Oona, and their children.

Indict Father Who Slew Son

CHICAGO (AP)—The Cook County grand jury Wednesday reportedly voted a true bill charging James Dodd, 32, with murder in the fatal beating of his son, James Jr., 2.

Dodd, a machinist, has been held in the County Jail since Saturday. He testified at an inquest Monday that he kicked the child several times and threw his body across the room last Thursday because he had soiled his clothing. Dodd's wife, Ruby, 23, testified her husband was mean to the child, but did not display this attitude toward their other child, a 4-year-old girl.

He's a Humorist

HOUSTON (AP)—Charles R. Bentley, 33, is an El Campo, Tex., man who apparently likes a joke. He pleaded guilty Wednesday to second-offense drunk driving—specifically to chasing a Houston woman around her yard in his automobile Aug. 6, 1951.

Then he paid off a $350 fine, plus $22 in court costs—with 7,440 nickels.

Some birds' body temperatures are as high as 100 degrees, says Alan Devoe in the current Reader's Digest. In others, the heart beats normally at the rate of 500 times a minute. A bird inhales air much more deeply than humans do, for its lungs are connected with additional air sacs, some of which extend into the bones.

Economy Beef Cuts Are Treat Served With Sauce

By GAYNOR MADDON

This is the season when grass-fed cattle move to market in heaviest volume. In general, grass beef is better cooked with moist heat, in stew, pot roasts, braised and in hamburgers.

One of our favorite dishes is sauerbraten with potato dumplings, the way they serve it at old Luchow's German restaurant in New York. Yes, it must be started four days in advance. But when you bite into the richly seasoned tender meat, you'll be glad you waited.

Sauerbraten with Potato Dumplings

(Serves 6 or more)

Three pounds round steak, 1 tablespoon salt, ½ teaspoon pepper, 2 onions, sliced, 1 carrot, sliced, 1 stalk celery, chopped, 4 cloves, 4 peppercorns, 1 pint red wine vinegar, 2 bay leaves, 2 tablespoons kidney fat, 6 tablespoons butter, 5 tablespoons flour, 1 tablespoon sugar, 8 or 10 gingersnaps, crushed, potato dumplings.

Wipe steak with damp cloth; season with salt and pepper. Place in earthen, glass, or enamelware bowl. Combine onions, carrot, celery, cloves, peppercorns, vinegar, and bay leaves and pour over meat. Cover and put in refrigerator 4 days.

On 5th day remove from refrigerator, drain meat, and saute in kidney fat and 1 tablespoon butter, until seared on all sides. Add marinade liquid and bring to boil, then lower heat and let simmer about 3 hours.

Melt remaining 5 tablespoons butter in a pan. Stir flour smoothly into it. Add sugar, blend, and let brown to nice dark color. Add to simmering meat mixture. Cover and continue cooking until meat is tender, about 1 hour longer. Remove meat to a warmed serving platter.

Stir crushed gingersnaps into the pot juices and cook until thickened. Pour this special sauerbraten gravy over meat. Serve with potato dumplings.

Ike, Okays News Leaks By Aides

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower said Wednesday that if his aides occasionally slip news tips to publications for their own purposes, he will not stop them.

Eisenhower made the statement at a news conference in reply to a question from Raymond P. Brandt of the St. Louis Dispatch as to whether it would be administration policy to "leak" information to certain friendly newspapers rather than make it available to all through official announcements.

Cites Warren Story This was in reference to published stories which forecast in advance, with unnamed government officials as the source, that Gov. Earl Warren would be named chief justice.

Until Eisenhower announced Warren's designation, the White House had refused to comment on the report or to say when an announcement would be made.

At first, the President said he could give no quick answer to the question, but he went on to say he has trusted aides and that if occasionally they leak news to publications for their own purposes he does not intend to interfere.

If correspondents have any complaints, he said, they should put them in writing, give the full details and present them to Press Secretary James C. Hagerty.

Then Eisenhower said that anyone who thinks he is not being fair should speak up.

At this point, Francis Stephenson of the New York Daily News said: "If your subordinates are going to leak news, I would appreciate it if you would let us in on it."

Johns Laughter Eisenhower did not reply but joined in the general laughter.

Stephenson told Hagerty at a news conference Wednesday that Atty. Gen. Brownell had leaked the information about Warren's appointment.

Fine Hal Block on Traffic Counts; Nil Drunk Charge

CHICAGO (AP)—Hal Block, radio and television figure, was convicted of speeding and driving without a driver's license Wednesday, and was fined $30 by Municipal Court Judge George B. Weiss.

Judge Weiss dismissed a drunken driving charge against the 40-year-old entertainer after Police-man Robert Dwyer testified that Block's car was not weaving in and out of traffic on the Outer Drive June 25.

Block said he had had "one or two beers" before he was arrested. He testified he increased his speed because he believed another car was following him and he feared a holdup.

Chicago Safety Checks Abandoned

CHICAGO (AP)—Compulsory safety inspections of automobiles is a thing of the past for Chicago auto owners.

After 17 years, the city Wednesday closed down its nine car testing lanes, dismissed most of the 174 civil service workers employed in the safety project and prepared to sell the testing equipment.

The City Council recently voted an end to the project in which some 800,000 car owners in Chicago were required to have their automobiles tested twice yearly.

The annual $600,000 appropriation for the testing lanes now will be allocated to street maintenance and repair.

The population of Italy is increasing at the rate of 8 tenths of one per cent a year.

Texas Sends Recipe for a Savory Onion, Chili Meal

We were in San Antonio, Texas, getting the lowdown on chili—a very sweet and sometimes hot subject. After watching them grind the pods and can chili con carne and barbecue sauce, we tried a few new recipes. There was shrimp in barbecue sauce, Mexican fried chicken, and succulent onions stuffed with chili con carne.

All of these recipes belong in your fall and winter menus to give new interest and break the monotony.

Mexican Fried Chicken (Serves 8)

Three-pound fryer, 2 teaspoons salt, ½ cup flour, ½ cup raw rice, 1 tablespoon chili powder, ½ cup fat, 1 small onion, chopped, 1 clove garlic, minced, 1 green pepper, chopped, 1 cup tomatoes, 2 teaspoons chili powder.

Cut chicken into pieces for serving; salt and roll each piece in ing; salt and roll each piece in mixture of flour and 1 tablespoon chili powder. Brown chicken in hot fat; reduce heat. Add other ingredients; cover, allow to simmer until done, about 1 hour.

Stuffed Onions Gebhardt

Parboil medium onions until tender. Take out centers and fill with chili con carne or spiced Mexican style chili beans. Place in shallow baking pan. Pour over remaining chili or beans from one can and bake at 350 degrees F. (moderate) for 30 minutes.

The weight of air over us is 2,160 pounds per square foot at sea level, says Lincoln Barnett in the current Reader's Digest. We are not aware of it, however, because of the equal pressure inside our bodies.

Seasonings Enhance Flavor Of Best Grass-Fed Beef

By GAYNOR MADDOX

With so much beef available today, both top quality and lean, grass-fed, it's time to talk about seasonings that enhance beef's wonderful flavor.

My mother, a wonderful cook in the fine California tradition, taught us to rub a hot steak platter with a cut clove of garlic first, then to dot the platter liberally with butter, dust with salt, pepper and a little cayenne pepper.

Next, she sprinkled it lightly with Worcestershire sauce. When the butter melted, she would tilt the platter so that it ran over the seasonings and blended them. On to this wonderful sauce, she would plunk the sizzling hot broiled steak.

Want some more hints for embellishing your broiled steaks? Garlic: Before broiling, brush steak with salad oil which has been flavored with garlic. (one to 2 cloves of peeled, sliced garlic in oil for 2 or 3 hours). Or sprinkle broiled steak with garlic juice or garlic salt.

Roquefort: Spread top of broiled steak lightly with mashed Roquefort or Blue cheese.

Lemon Juice: Mix well 1/4 cup butter, juice of 1 lemon, 1 tablespoon chopped chives. Spread over the surface of T-bone or individual steaks.

Steak Seasoning Salt: A make-your-own seasoning salt: 2 tablespoons salt, 2 tablespoons paprika, 1 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper, 1 teaspoon onion salt, 1 teaspoon garlic salt. Blend thoroughly. Pour into a shaker and use in place of other seasoning except butter.

Danville Editor Dies Wednesday

DANVILLE, Ill. (U.P.)—Harold J. Bond, 42, state editor of the Danville Commercial—News the last three years, died Wednesday of a chronic heart ailment.

He had been a member of the newspaper staff since he was given a medical discharge from the army. He had gone into service in 1941 as a member of the Illinois National Guard.

Surviving are the widow, Genevieve, his father and four brothers.

No one has been able to raise sea otters in captivity.

Savory Meat Dishes Utilize Inexpensive Cuts of Beef

By GAYNOR MADDON

With so much grass-fed beef being rushed to market, this is the season for economical feasting. Try this unusually good variation of brown stew with curry and sour cream.

Beef Indienne (About 4 servings)

One pound lean beef stew meat, 1/4 cup flour, 1 teaspoon salt, 1/4 teaspoon black pepper, 1/4 cup fat, 4 small onions, peeled, 1 green pepper, sliced, 1 cup sour cream, 1 to 2 teaspoons curry powder, 1/2 teaspoon cayenne pepper.

Cut the beef into 1 1/2-inch cubes. Combine flour, salt, and pepper and roll the beef in this until well covered. Heat the fat in a heavy skillet. Add the beef, stir and heat until lightly browned. Add water. Cover tightly and simmer 1 hour.

Add the onions and green pepper and continue cooking 30 minutes or until the beef is tender. Combine sour cream, curry powder and cayenne and stir this slowly into the bubbling stew. Stir and cook just 1 minute. Taste. Add more salt, if necessary. Serve with hot rice.

From Washington, D. C., the cooking experts of the Department of Agriculture, suggest this delicious use of lean beef.

Beef and Tomatoes on Spaghetti

Two and one half cups of fresh (or canned) tomatoes, 1/2 garlic clove, 1 bay leaf, 3/4 pound ground beef, 1/4 cup chopped onion, 1/4 cup minced green pepper, 2 tablespoons fat, 2 tablespoons flour, 1 teaspoon sugar, if desired, 1 teaspoon salt, pepper.

Cook tomatoes, garlic and bay leaf. Press through a sieve. Brown the beef, onion, and green pepper in the fat. Blend in the flour. Add sieved tomatoes, sugar, salt and pepper. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until thickened. Serve hot on cooked spaghetti, noodles, or rice.

Cigaret Tax To Be Tested For Validity

CHICAGO (U.P.)—The city of Chicago won't be able to get its hands on the proceeds of its penny-a-pack cigaret tax until its validity is tested in court.

Judge William V. Brothers of Circuit Court so ruled Wednesday in signing a temporary injunction against collection of the tax, which would have gone into effect today.

Until a pending court case questioning legality of the tax is settled, money paid by dealers for tax stamps will be held in escrow in a Chicago bank.

Judge Brothers said he was signing the injunction with the understanding that smokers tax is found invalid.

Economical Flank Steak Is Best Served Spanish Style

FOR EASY MEAT CUTTING, this new set of matched kitchen cutlery is best. Stainless steel blades are in plastic handles.

Grass-fed beef is super-abundant now and from 35 to 45 per cent lower in cost than at this time last year.

Among the cheapest cuts is flank steak. Fat from tender part of good flavor, it can be cooked deliciously. For flank steak recipes and for hundreds of other meat recipes, let's turn to the new 559-page "The Complete Meat Cookbook" by Beth Bailey McLean and Thora Hegstad Campbell of Chicago, two of the leading meat-cooking experts in the United States.

Select top quality flank steak with a good portion of fat (about 1-inch thick). Then follow their recipe:

Flank Steak Spanish Style
(Yield: 6 servings)
One flank steak (1 1/2 to 2 pounds), 1 teaspoon salt, flour, 2 tablespoons fat, 1 medium onion, sliced, 2 cups cooked tomatoes, 1 green pepper, sliced (optional), 1 teaspoon chili powder (optional).

Have the meat dealer score the steak into diamond shapes. Season with salt and pepper if desired. Sprinkle with flour. Brown on both sides in hot fat or bacon drippings in a skillet or roasting pan. Cover with sliced onions, tomatoes and sliced green pepper or diced celery. Cover the skillet or pan. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F) 2 hours.

Mix chili powder with 1/4 cup cold water. Stir it into the gravy around the steak and spoon the steak hot with hot rice or spaghetti.

Method of Handling Large Sirloin Steak Is Important

Broiled sirloin steak, with French fried potatoes and onion rings, is a treat fit for a king. Beef prices are now declining.

By GAYNOR MADDON

Not only lean, grass-fed beef, but also a record amount of top-quality beef for this season is coming to market. So let's talk about broiled sirloin steak with our meat expert friends in Chicago. Here's what they advise:

In purchasing sirloin steak, make certain you are getting the very best quality. Allow 1 1/2 to 2 pounds per person. Have the steak cut 1 to 2 inches thick for broiling.

Store in waxed paper or aluminum foil in the refrigerator until ready to use, but not longer than 3 to 5 days. Wait until people are ready to eat before cooking the steak. Slash the fat edges to prevent curling and place on a pre-heated broiling pan.

Most experts recommend that an exact broiling schedule be followed if you are at all uncertain, and that the meat be placed 3 inches from the source of heat. If the steak is very thick and you wish it well done, as preferred in the Midwest, place further away from the heat so that it will have time to cook through without drying out the surface.

When broiled, remove the steak to a large hot platter. Add a sprinkling of salt and freshly ground pepper and a pat of butter.

Safe, Courteous Drivers Will Be Presented Cash

CHICAGO (U.P.)—Safe and courteous driving is playing cash dividends to some Chicago motorists.

The Chicago Sun-Times is paying out $25,000 to motorists nominated by the newspaper's more than 200 truck drivers who deliver newspapers in the Chicago area 24 hours a day.

The 10-week campaign operates as follows:

The truck drivers got down the license plate numbers of safe drivers and drop them in a barrel. Up to 15 of these are drawn at random daily, the winners receiving checks equal to the amount they will have to pay for their 1954 license plates.

In addition, a total of $1,000 in cash prizes is distributed each week to six nominations drawn at random from the barrel.

Sloopers Society
Will Hold Meeting
Near Marsilles

MARSILLES, Ill. (U.P.) — The Sloopers Society of America will hold its annual meeting Sunday in a rural area north of Marsilles.

The Sloopers are descendants of a group of Norwegians who sailed to the United States in 1825 and nine years later formed the first permanent Norwegian colony in America at the hamlet of Norway.

Their leader was Cleng Peerson, the Norwegian "Daniel Boone" who settled colonies of his countrymen in Illinois, Missouri and Texas.

Royal Jacobs of Emington, near Pontiac, is president of the Sloopers.

Army Rejects
Plan to Send
Moms to Korea

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—The Army has rejected as impractical a suggestion that the mothers of 23 Americans who refused to come home from Communist captivity be sent to Korea to plead with their sons.

An Army statement Wednesday said any face-to-face meeting between the 23 Americans and their mothers must await the end of the 120-day period during which "explanatory teams" try to reason the men out of their vociferous refusal to be repatriated.

The Army offered to accept any message from any relative of the men. "The secretary of the Army... will see that it is delivered to the individual concerned," the statement said.

Time to Think
CHARLOTTE, N. C. (U.P.) — John Reid, 27, stepped on the gas and let 'er rip through Charlotte's business district.

People ran for their lives. Three cars, one pedestrian and a telephone pole didn't quite make it and were hit by the plunging automobile.

Finally captured, Reid said: "I don't know why I done it."

A judge gave him three years in prison to figure it out.

Poor Millionaire

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y. (AP)—Nunzio Mina could be a nobleman and a millionaire in his native Italy, but he'd rather be a retired contractor in Niagara Falls.

Mina, 62, was born in Palermo, Sicily, the son of a baron, descended from Italian royalty. When he was 15, he left his father's estate, came to the United States and worked long hours as a day laborer. Recently, he was visited by his sister Maria, who preferred a formal education and social prominence in her native land. In Italy, says the baroness, her brother would be supervising the family estate, enjoying the status of a millionaire. "That would be wonderful I'll admit," Nunzio says "but I'd rather live here in Niagara Falls." Glaucoma, a disease of the eyes, can be halted and sight saved if it is detected early, but once it causes blindness, the sight cannot be restored.

Eye to Future

SUPERIOR, Wis. (AP)—The operator of the People's Market here really has an eye for business. On the back of his delivery trucks are the words: "Drive carefully, don't kill my customers."

IN THU GUD OLD SUBBETIBE—If you're sneezing, weezing and feeling pretty bad around the nasal passages, you can probably count yourself as one of the one in every ten Americans who suffer from hay fever. Hay fever sufferers by the thousands take to the highway during August and September to try and escape the annoying ragweed. Black areas on above Newsmap locates areas in the U. S. most ideal for vacations for hay fever sufferers.

Chief Justice Warren Is a Political Moderate He Outraged Republicans By Boosting Health Plan

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)—In naming Earl Warren to the Supreme court, President Eisenhower picked a man whose political philosophy seems to follow the middle-of-the-road course advocated by Eisenhower himself.

Warren, 62, is and always has been a Republican. Yet he won election as governor of California three times with strong backing from registered Democrats who predominate in his state. And former President Truman once said of him: "He's really a Democrat and doesn't know it."

Warren has, indeed, often seemed to be closer to the Truman wing of the Democratic party than to the conservative kind of Republicanism. A declared friend of "social progress," he outraged many California Republicans by pushing repeatedly — and unsuccessfully — for a state compulsory health insurance program.

Yet he was outspoken in praise of the Supreme Court decision which upset Truman's 1952 seizure of the steel industry. Long before that he opposed Franklin D. Roosevelt's plan to enlarge the Supreme Court. And, as a coastal state governor, he favored — like Eisenhower and unlike Truman — state ownership of offshore submerged lands.

Warren calls himself a liberal or progressive Republican. He has, in fact, cautioned his party against following "extremists of the right" declaring in a speech: "I am convinced the American people are not socialists and will not tolerate socialist government, but they are definitely committed to social progress."

What sort of man is Earl Warren? Genial Westerner Millions came to know him in 1948, when he was the unsuccessful Republican candidate for vice president, as a genial, 6-foot-1 Westerner with an unusually appealing family — including three photogenic daughters.

Staff members know him as a firm and exacting boss but a fair and considerate one. Few people remember the self-confident Warren of today as a young lawyer who used to be "scared to death," as he puts it, of appearing in court.

"I'd get on a street car and I would be so tense I'd hope the car would be wrecked on the way to the courthouse," Warren has told an associate.

Family an Asset The Warren family, undoubtedly a great political as well as personal asset, became nationally known during the Republican National Convention of 1948, where daughters, Virginia, Dorothy and Nina — now 24, 22 and 19 respectively, delighted the galleries and the photographers. Nina "Honey Bear" was stricken with polio in 1950 but has recovered.

The other children are James, 34; Earl Jr., 23; and Robert, 18. James was a small boy when his widowed mother, Mrs. Nina Palmquist Meyers, married Warren in 1925. The family always has been closely knit and Warren found time to read aloud to the children when they were young.

Warren tried for top place on the GOP ticket in 1948 but settled for the vice presidential nomination. With New York Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, who defeated him for the presidential nomination, he was bowled over in the surprise election victory of Truman and Alben W. Barkley.

In The Running Again in 1952 Warren was in the running but the race soon turned into a contest between Eisenhower and the late Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio. Warren helped to swing the nomination to Eisenhower by siding with him in the disputed delegate contests that foreshadowed Taft's ultimate defeat.

Warren was born in Los Angeles, the son of a railway car repairman who came to this country from Norway as a child. The future governor's mother died when he was 40. His father was beaten to death as he sat alone in his living room in 1938. The slaying never has been solved.

Warren went into private law practice upon graduation from the University of California. In World War I he served as an infantry lieutenant and afterward became a deputy district attorney of Alameda County—mainly, he says, to gain trial experience.

That was 34 years ago. Warren has been a public official ever since. Warren never has been a judge himself, though as governor he has named about half of the judges in his state's 58 counties. He voices pride that none of the more than 10,000 bills he has signed has been successfully challenged in the courts; "leastwise none of the major laws."

He first gained statewide recognition as a racket-busting district attorney. Later, in his first statewide race, he was elected attorney general after winning both Democratic and Republican nomi-inations—a feat he repeated when elected to his second term as governor in 1946. That is possible under California law.

In 1950 Warren's Democratic opponent was James Roosevelt, son of Franklin D. Roosevelt. Warren defeated him by more than a million votes, becoming the first three-term governor in California's history.

Warren's three terms have brought increased pensions for the blind, aged and needy; a cut in the state sales tax; an employee disability act; revision of the state's mental health and penal programs; a highway modernization program; and, among other things, an expansion of the state's health and hospitalization program.

When the legislature balked at a compulsory health insurance program, Warren sharply denied he was advocating "socialized medicine."

"It is merely extending the principle of insurance to one of the greatest hazards which confronts the working man and woman," he said—using much the same language Truman used in advocating, also without success, a national health insurance program.

Warren is a 33rd degree Mason and in 1935-36 was grand master of the California grand lodge. Raised in the Methodist Church, he now attends the Baptist Church with Mrs. Warren. He says he makes a practice of reading the Bible daily.

Nobody Does Anything About Art of Conversation But Talk By HAL BOYLE NEW YORK (AP)—Everybody knows the art of conversation is dying in America, but nobody does anything about it except talk . . . talk . . . talk . . .

When it comes to improving their conversation, they buy a $3.50 book marked down to 98 cents entitled, "You Can Hold Them Spellbound, or How to Gab Your Way From the Gutter to the Stars."

They all study the three great secrets: (1) The best listener is the best conversationalist; (2) Get the other fellow to talking about himself; (3) Don't say anything that might hurt anybody's feelings.

When you get caught in a roomful of people all trying at the same time to use these three keys to conversational success on each other—well, mister, the cobwebs gather early. It goes like this: "What did you say?" "Oh, I didn't say anything, I thought you were going to say something."

"Well, sure been a nice day—now tell me something about yourself."

"Oh, no, you tell me about yourself. You look so interesting." Everybody feels it's safer and makes him more popular to converse in platitudes in these latitudes. But each just finds the other less worth ever wanting to see again.

Most conversations languish because one is afraid to give his own opinions because he is politely cocking both ears to be sure and impress another gent who never had anything in his life worth saying, and wouldn't have the courage to say it if he did.
